GERMANS ARE SUCCESSFUL AT VERDUN

DENY THAT MEN AND GUNS ARE REMOVED

Berlin, July 15.—The offensive of the Entente Allies on the Western front has not caused the withdrawal by the Germans of a single man or a single gun from the Verdun front, where the attack on the French fortress is being consistently and successfully pressed, says a statement issued today by the Overseas News Agency, summarizing news comments on the Western front campaign.

"The German success reported yesterday to have been won on the right bank of the Meuse, near St. Souville and Launoy Plateau is commented upon by the German newspapers as an event of remarkable importance," says the news agency summary. "This, the first enterprise attempted at Verdun since the beginning of the great enemy offensive, proves conclusively that the head of the German army, despite all hostile attacks on both the Eastern and Western fronts, has not lost sight of the original object in view."

"No German soldier and no German cannon has been withdrawn from Verdun, and the battle is continuing successfully, with the initiative in German hands. If Germany's enemies had hoped to seize the initiative by the attacks of their armies of millions of men and lay down a course of action for the Germans, they have been bitterly disappointed by the course of events."

"After their brief successes won at the beginning of their offensive, the advances of hostile masses up to this time have been broken up by the heroic resistance and tenacious endurance of the brave German defenders of the Somme. German headquarters remains the master of the course of operations."

"The success won near Souville is worthy of mention as one of the means taken to achieve the German end, as it shows the whole world the superiority of German arms," the summary concludes, "and proves that Germany has reason for viewing the military situation with the same confidence as before."

COAST OF EASTERN STATES ALIVE WITH SHARKS

MAN-EATING SHARK & CREW THAT CAUGHT IT. (INTL. FILM SERVICE) The above is a picture of one of the shoal of man-eating sharks, with which the eastern coast is alive. The shark menace has practically stopped beach bathing, because of the vast number of sharks near the coast. Thus far, the sharks have claimed a number of victims within the last few days and the tigerish way in which the shark seizes its prey makes for an awful death, rescue being practically impossible. Beach patrols have been organized and every effort is being made to capture the man-eaters.

Daugherty Club Organizes; P. H. Harsha Is President

To advance the interests of the campaign of Hon. Harry M. Daugherty, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, a Daugherty Campaign Club of Scioto county has been organized and will take an active interest in the remaining few days before the August primaries. P. H. Harsha is president of the new organization and Frank Kiefer is treasurer with D. Willard Gustin secretary.

There are twenty vice presidents, representing every section of the county and city. These are: Judge Anselm T. Holcomb, Dr. W. G. Cheney, New Boston; Judge George M. Osborn, John Martin, Frank Bennett, John Kline, Lucasville; Dr. J. W. Hutchins, Sciotoville; Dr. J. S. Frizzell, Buena Vista; Fred N. Tynes, B. F. Fugitt, H. M. Allen, William Abrams, Press Thompson, McDermott; Henry Walton, Marvin C. Clark, James A. Folsom, Green township; Bert Scott, Randon; W. J. Mossbarger, South Webster; John F. Eckhart and Dr. P. W. Young.

The names of the committeemen of which there are several will be announced next week.

It is the intention of the organization to promote the campaign of Hon. Harry M. Daugherty in Scioto county, according to an announcement made by D. Willard Gustin, secretary. The candidate will be brought to the city for a public reception and an address. The date has not been definitely set but it will probably be about July 28 or 29.

The organization expects to promote an active campaign in every precinct in the county and city in the interests of their candidate and will start on this work Monday.

In speaking of the candidate which is to be supported by the organization in the coming primaries, Mr. Gustin characterized Mr. Daugherty as a man of integrity and of strength, one that would be able to represent the state in the United States senate.

"The Hon. Harry M. Daugherty, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator, has labored faithfully for the party for years, he has the ability, the character and the stamina of which good senatorial timber is made and to us it appears as the ideal time to pay a just and deserved tribute as a debt of gratitude which the party owes to him. We like a man who has the fighting qualities he possesses and one who is not afraid to say where he stands. With two such men as Harding and Daugherty in the United States senate Ohio will stand second to none.

"For thirty years he has been one of the hardest workers and fighters for Republicanism in the state and in all that time he has never held a public office. In the critical year of 1912, when it took courage and a spirit of self sacrifice, Fighting Harry Daugherty accepted the state chairmanship of our party and fought a good clean fight. And preserved the Republican party of Ohio in such good shape that in 1914 we carried the state.

"Mr. Daugherty has done more for the Republican party and received less than any other man in the state. The question has been raised 'Can Mr. Daugherty get the vote of the Progressive wing of the Republican party?' We believe he can. We all admire a man who fights in the open and the Progressives admit that while Mr. Daugherty was a hard fighter he was always fair and this method of fighting has gained for him the confidence and respect of those same fellows who at one time were his opponents.

"The country passed through one of the greatest political crises of its history in 1912. No one was in doubt where Mr. Daugherty stood at the time. But that is an argument for Mr. Daugherty's selection, not his defeat, the August primary.

"Concerning his personal life, Mr. Daugherty is a self made man, a product of the country. He was raised at Washington C. H., and lived in the country until he arrived at manhood, and therefore he is familiar with the needs of the agricultural districts.

"He is also a lawyer of wide practice and deep learning. This gives him that broad and comprehensive view of legal questions which arise in the senate and must be settled with care and to avoid

Smith Found Guilty, Is Fined $20, Case Going To Higher Court

Mayor J. S. Davis' court room at New Boston was crowded Friday afternoon when Joe Smith, a Gallia street restaurant man was arraigned on a charge of assault filed against him by Mrs. Mary Bennie of Gallia and Center streets. The case was the outcome of trouble between Mrs. Bennie and Mr. Smith last Tuesday morning when Smith tore down a clothes line on which Mrs. Smith was hanging a carpet.

Mr. Smith was defended by Attorney A. Z. Blair while Mrs. Bennie was represented by Attorney Nate B. Gilliland. After hearing testimony of a number of witnesses Mayor Davis found Smith guilty and fined him $20 and costs. Attorney Blair made a motion for a new trial but the mayor overruled the motion. Blair refused to allow his client to pay the fine and he was locked up. Smith remained in jail about two hours or until Attorney Blair appeared before Judge Beatty and secured habeas corpus papers through which he secured Smith's release.

The case will probably have its ending in the common pleas court.

How Long Will Car Last?

An interesting discussion has been aroused in local motoring circles as to how long a good automobile will last.

The general decision seems to be that the automobile industry itself is not old enough to accurately determine the average life of cars.

In connection with the discussion, an interesting incident was brought up relative to the longevity of some of the earlier cars with the same classic principles that are used today. Charles Jackson, local Crowell representative, cites an extremely interesting instance in connection with the car owned by William H. Cole, of Trenton, N. J., which has run close to 200,000 miles. The car is a 1909 Crow model and contains the same chassis principles as are being utilized in the car today, although the 1917 models of the Crow have these principles in a far more highly developed state.

WILL OPEN NEW OPTICAL STORE

James G. Bennett, who for the past three years has been connected with the Crescent Jewelry and Optical Co., 920 Gallia street, will sever his relations with that concern on August first and will engage in business for himself in the room next to the Sun theater building, 838 Gallia street.

Mr. Bennett, who has made a host of friends during his stay in this city, will open an up-to-date optical store. Not only will his optical parlors be first class in every particular, but he will install a complete lens grinding plant and will be able to meet all demands made upon him.

Mr. Bennett is a graduate of the Philadelphia Optical College, completing his course in that institution in 1906. Since that time he has been engaged in the optical business. Not only is he skilled along that line, but he is an expert watchmaker and may decide to add that feature to his business. His primary object, however, will be the optical business. Since coming here he has established himself through merit and there is no doubt but he will meet with success in his new venture. His successor at the Crescent Jewelry and Optical Co. has not been named.

SANITARY MEASURES TO BE OBSERVED TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF CHILDREN'S DISEASE

New York, July 15—Hotel and boarding house keepers all over the state were notified today by local health officers that they would be expected to do their part in preventing the spread of infantile paralysis. The local health authorities acted under the instructions from Dr. Hermann H. Biggs, state commissioner of health, who was led to send out a new circular of information, owing to the fact that thousands of families have left New York for the rural districts to safeguard the health of their children. Proprietors of hotels and boarding houses will be required to notify health officers of the arrival of any children from infected districts. Those who fail to do so, Dr. Biggs said, will be held personally responsible for any unfavorable developments.

The state health department also urged local health officers to see that glasses, dishes, spoons and other utensils used in eating and drinking in public places are thoroughly soaked, or otherwise disinfected after use. This rule has been enforced already in New York City. The instructions apply particularly to soda fountains. Commissioner Biggs' circular said it is earnestly hoped as little hardship will be inflicted upon the people of the state as is compatible with the health of the people.

Physicians fighting the plague here were encouraged today by cooler weather, also by the fact that there has been a slight decrease in the number of offenders arrested by violations of the sanitary law. The police say janitors and caretakers of apartments are co-operating with them to enforce the law.

Had Fine Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brunner, Miss Mary Brunner and Mrs. Geo. Schirra and two children, George and Harry, have returned from a motor trip to Springfield, Dayton and Columbus.

HON. MYRON T. HERRICK IS GREETED BY A BIG CROWD

Issues Of The Day Are Discussed In Gallia Square By Distinguished Visitor; Is On Statewide Trip

In consequence of the visit of Hon. Myron T. Herrick, Cleveland, ex-governor of the state and ex-ambassador to France, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senatorial honors, a large concourse of citizens gathered at the Gallia street esplanade Friday evening to welcome the distinguished visitor and his party. It was truly a "Herrick Day" and Republicans and Democrats alike, unimpaired of political faiths, assisted in entertaining the "Governor," as he was cheerfully and affectionately saluted on all sides.

The well known statesman and his party were about an hour behind their scheduled time when they arrived in the city from Ironton and the early reception, which was to have been held between the hours of five and six was cancelled.

At four o'clock the River City band assembled at the Gallia street esplanade and played a few selections while the automobiles gathered. Later, the band was seated in Ed Stabler's truck and the squadron started with 21 machines for Sciotoville to meet the distinguished visitors. The parade created much interest along the route taken and on arriving the squadron was halted on Main street to await the coming of the Ironton party.

It was near five thirty o'clock when the distinguished statesman and his party entered the village. In the party were Hon. Myron T. Herrick, Cleveland; C. H. Fout, driver and owner of the machine, Ironton; Charles Argis, Ironton; O. E. Irish, secretary of the Herrick Voters' League of Lawrence county; E. C. Vermillion, Youngstown, and Louis B. Kaufman, Columbus.

The automobile was besieged with the Portsmouth delegates who made the trip and Mr. Herrick was forced to leave the machine and greet the delegation.

S. R. Ross There To Greet Mr. Herrick

One of the foremost figures of the Portsmouth delegation was Samuel R. Ross, Court street, who is one of the oldest voters in the city. Mr. Ross made the trip in Phil M. Streich's machine and enjoyed it very much.

All along the way coming back the ex-governor was greeted with cheers and applause and waving of hats.

Judge John C. Milner and Harry W. Miller, chairman of the meeting on the esplanade, made the trip to Portsmouth with Mr. Herrick.

The party arrived at the Washington hotel about six o'clock. The lobby was profusely decorated with festoons of American flags and strings of hearing the national colors. Here and there were fine pictures of the visitor. Many were there to meet the candidate for senatorial nomination but owing to the late arrival the party after a few moments proceeded directly to the dining room where dinner was served.

Those taking dinner with the visitor were: Phil M. Streich, Sr.; C. H. Fout, Charles Argis and O. E. Irish, all of Ironton; E. C. Vermillion, Youngstown; L. B. Kaufman, Columbus; Arnold Schapiro, secretary of the Herrick Voters' League of Scioto county, under whose auspices Mr. Herrick was brought to this city.

Before dinner was concluded the River City band struck up a lively air in the lobby. Mr. Herrick left the dining room and went directly to the lobby where he met the reception committee and several hundred citizens.

Mr. Herrick Was Introduced All Around

For almost an hour the statesman was busy acknowledging introductions and exchanging salutations with friends with whom he was acquainted before coming to this city.

Mr. Herrick has been accompanied on his speaking tours, which has covered eleven counties within the past five days, by Louis B. Kaufman, of the Kauffmann Brothers Drug company, of Columbus, one of the well known wholesale drug companies in the country, and E. C. Vermillion, Youngstown, who was one of the powers behind the David Tod campaign for the Republican nomination for governor of the state against Frank B. Willis.

Since Monday morning Mr. Herrick has addressed meetings at Cambridge, Nelsonville, Canton, Maumee, Zanesville, Galesburg, Athens, Marietta, Alliance, Middleport, Johnstown, Newburg, Granville, Johnstown, Lima, Ironton and Portsmouth.

Mr. Vermillion stated that one of the strongest meetings they had ever held was conducted at Zanesville when the Marks Manufacturing company closed their plant for one-half hour so that Ex-Governor Herrick might address them. Most of the employees of this plant, according to Mr. Vermillion, are naturalized citizens, Hungarians and Austrians.

The tour for this week was comcluded at Portsmouth and after the address which was delivered at the Gallia street esplanade, the distinguished visitor and his party left in the Arthur H. Bannon automobile for Columbus where they intend to entrain for Cleveland.

Planning To Tour Northwestern Counties

Beginning with next Monday, Mr. Herrick intends to make a tour of the counties in the northwestern part of the state. He expects to visit the following counties: Fulton, Defiance, Paulding and Putnam.

The delay of the A. H. Bannon machine delayed the speaker and his party until after the River City band had arrived at the esplanade. Mr. Herrick was afterwards taken to the place designated for the meeting by Hon. Henry T. Bannon, in his machine. The big automobile was backed into the crowds at the east side of the esplanade and after the band played one selection, Harry W. Miller, chairman of the meeting, introduced the speaker.

The meeting was to have been held at the Republican club rooms, Gallia street, but was changed to the outside Friday afternoon on account of the sweltering heat.

Both the reception and the meeting at the esplanade were successes and the local Herrick Voters' League is well pleased with the enthusiasm with which Mr. Herrick was greeted.

Strenuously Denies He Is Pro-Ally

In an interview Mr. Herrick stated that he was being criticised in a few places as being pro-Ally. This he strenuously denies. During his ambassadorial career in France and at the outbreak of the European war, Mr. Herrick was intrusted with the affairs of both Germany and Austria-Hungary, he says. Since leaving France, he has received letters from both nations thanking him for the services performed and characterizing them as very satisfactory.

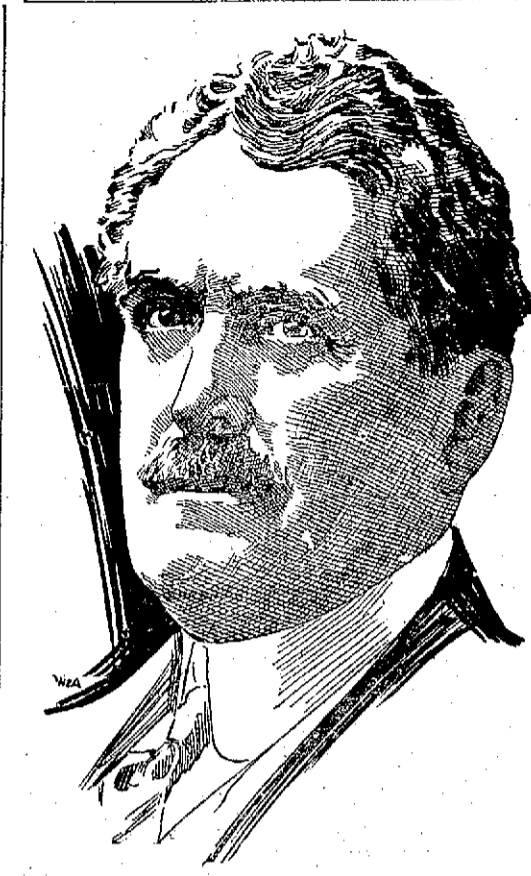

"We are about to enter upon a campaign," declared Harry W. Miller, chairman of the open air meeting in introducing Hon. Myron T. Herrick, "which means much for the Republican party and means much to the country at large.

"This party, which is organized around a platform which has incorporated within it those things which tend to make a strong government, can and will accomplish the return of prosperity. It is a party that has fulfilled its pledges, as is shown in the past.

"It is unlike the Democratic party which for four years has repudiated its doctrines and President Wilson has treated this document or platform as a scrap of paper.

"Ohio is proud of its achievements and its traditions. The Republican party believes it is confronted with grave problems and it is too. It has faith in its ability to solve them. This is indisputable.

"Ohio is proud of the men who have represented her and Ohio believes in selecting men capable of constructive statesmanship for this purpose; men who in conditions of great stress, can serve her with great distinction.

"Just such a man have we with us tonight. He has served the state with distinction as governor and later became ambassador to France where he served with great distinction and honor. And this evening I esteem it an honor and a rare privilege to present to you Hon. Myron T. Herrick."

Visited This City Many Years Ago

"It has been many years since I have had the pleasure of visiting your beautiful city and splendid people. Great events have taken place in these years that have passed. I come here tonight and feel gratified that I am back among our own people.

"Nothing gratifies me so much as to see my friends again and see the confidence the people of Ohio and America have in their ability to face the coming problems.

"The first time I was in your city was when I was out campaigning with 'Uncle' Mark Hanna. We had made addresses here and when it was over he was very tired and I found him huddled up in almost a chair. He had been devoting many days to campaigning and I asked him what was troubling him and he related to me a story of a soldier who had survived a battle; he had been over the dirt and dust of the field, he had seen the wounded; the dying and the blood and he had turned and soliloquizing said: 'Yes I love my country and I fit for her and bled for her and expect if necessary to die for her but when this war is over, I'll be dead—if I love another country.'

"I feel the pathos in this story as he told me that night.

"These Are Serious Times," Said Speaker

"These are serious times and they mean much in the coming election in November. Not only do they relate to the people of the United States but with all the world. There is involved a question relating not only to ourselves but to nations of the world and the issue of the campaign is watched outside with just as much interest as when Lincoln was elected president of the United States.

"This is the time when citizenship implies more of privilege and responsibility, and demands a higher order of Americanism than any time since our forefathers declared the principles of human rights and went forth in defense battle to establish and maintain those principles as an inspiration through all the world to those who seek liberty and justice.

"I want to speak to you for a few moments of the greatest problem facing our people. I will try to enumerate them as national and as international problems. First of all I would like to call your attention to the war. We, after the war, have our responsibilities when there will be a rearrangement of our foreign relations and the preparations we hope we may make in the coming months before the war—I say months and I devoutly hope the war is closed before many months.

"There are many things for us to determine before that time. First, what are our relations to the nations outside and what are our relations to the interior and what are our relations to international affairs and what power will we have to meet the conditions that are said to be coming.

"This is a period of introspection for the American people. We are taking stock, re-appraising many of our national assets whose values we had thought unchangeable. We are examining our fundamentals. We are wondering whether our constitution is now adapted to the changing needs of the times; wondering whether the rights in which we have rested with such security; wondering whether we are not lacking in definite national purpose; whether we shall be able to interpret aright our international relations and obligations. We are wondering what we are to stand for as to the world's future; what part we are to perform in determining that future. These questions, doubts and conjectures are uppermost in the minds of the American people today, and out of the general unrest many unpleasant apprehensions arise to give us concern for the future.

"On the south of us there is a nation that promises to be an irritant for years to come. But I do not speak in a partisan way in order to consider one more serious condition, I will relate to you an incident that occurred in Paris.

"I happened to meet the old Mexican president, General Diaz, I formed a good opinion of the old gentleman when I found, what was not generally supposed, that he was proverbially poor. And the general gave me some words of wisdom that seemed pertinent to the conditions after a lapse of three years.

"We were considering recognizing Huerta at that time and his character was not overly good. He could not furnish a certificate of good character. All other nations thought it best that he be recognized. Of course they all had vast property interests in Mexico. Germany had vast property interests and France had vast property interests and so did England and many others.

"Then we decided to take a hand in the elections and I am not disposed to criticize and am willing to mention and forgive him for making a mistake. We all make mistakes. But we should correct them. I am reminded of a grandfather and a grandfather and the old gentleman had made a mistake for which the grandfather was criticizing him. He said: 'Oh, well, granny, you do not know and never realize that all men make mistakes and some women.' Perhaps we did not realize it at that time but I am inclined to think now that General Diaz was right.

"Says We Have Lost Friendship of Mexico
"I, for thirty years have been trying to make the Mexican people understand the United States greatness and that their friendship is a great asset, so vast you cannot afford to lose it. If it is ever lost, it will be a generation or so before it is regained and would be a lasting detriment to the United States if it was lost. Well we have lost the friendship of Mexico and have actually excited their enmity. We regret it and should regret it silently. We are going to regret it.

"The old gentleman told me that he would have never resigned from the presidency of Mexico if he hadn't been suffering from an ulcerated tooth and I for one, had hoped that he had seen a dentist before he did that.

"There is an impression that to be neutral means that we may profit from the blood and tears of nations in agony, and that there is no obligation on us in return to do more than give a little of our surplus. But there is an active neutrality which will cause Europe to think of us when this war is over, not as the commercial sellers of munitions and supplies alone but as the large-hearted and free handed people who have cared for the wounded and dying, clothed and fed the homeless and hungry and nursed the helpless victims of battle. These are things which by the law of nations we are permitted to do, which by the law of humanity we are required to do. These are the actions which will gain for us the love of Europe, rather than its contempt for our commercialism.

"This is what is termed organized charity. In Paris there is a little hospital the Americans have charge of and desiring permission from the French government to put some beds in and treat the wounded of all nations. When the case was presented to the General of the Sanitary Commission of France, he said: 'We know something of the way the Americans have in caring for the wounded and why not take the Ellysium Palace. It is a long building, fellow citizens, as long as these buildings here and blocks long. How would you like to take this as a hospital and have it managed by Americans.'

"We told him that we would consider it for twenty-four hours and let him know. We found it required, after examination, about $400,000 a year and surgeons and doctors and nurses and orderlies and Americans enough to equip and handle it; at least to care for 500 patients. It required on the other hand, that whatever befell Paris, then none could desert and leave.

Americans Remained In Charge of Hospital

"The Americans in Paris, my friends, you will be glad to know; Americans who had business there and Americans who had been attracted to Paris by the gay side of the life, some of which, perhaps had never justified their lives before, were called together. They were called together, friends, and underwrote $400,000 and agreed to remain and care for the wounded regardless what happened, as Americans could not stand for the disgrace of deserting wounded soldiers.

"This stands as a great credit to the Americans. It is today one of the conspicuous things of which Americans can be proud, because it created one other that cost $200,000 and set an example along a six hundred mile line for caring for wounded soldiers.

"When that great German army, one of the most magnificent armies ever gotten together, were advancing and when the American ambassador at Berlin warned the ambassador to leave Paris and one of the German general staff had warned the Americans to leave and had even gone so far as to select the route by which a quarter people had left and when the French government was transferred, at this time these people in the hospital were advised that they would be released from their pledge as individuals and not collectively and that they could go without any stain upon their character and all the time the great German army was about to enter the city directly in the path of the American hospital, as we all believed at that time, you will be glad to know that not a surgeon, not a doctor, not a nurse, not an orderly and not an American left their post; not one of them."

"This information was greeted with cheers and applause which lasted several seconds.

"In describing this incident, I desire to draw a lesson. A little later the president of the republic, after the battle of the Marne, came back and went through the hospital. His austerity and his solemnity made the Americans believe that he was not well pleased with the hospital. But when he got outside and away from the crowds, tears rolled down his cheeks and he said: 'I am deeply touched by the way the Americans, who could go wherever and whenever they wanted to in the world, would choose to do what people believe what people of a neutral nation should do in caring for the wounded. I am deeply touched.' This is all the praise needed to show what has been accomplished.

"Belgium is another, of a lesser degree of the nations of Europe whose sufferings cannot be comprehended. I have seen a great deal of the sufferings and I have seen young men lying stark and cold on the field of battle. There has been 800,000 young men of France who have died in this war.

"It is little enough that we of America can do. We cannot heal the broken hearts nor fill the empty homes. But so far as gifts of money and supplies, and the personal service of our people, can soften for the sufferers in Europe the hard conditions under which they now exist, it is our duty to aid to the uttermost extent of our ability.

"I am told that there is not a child over eight years old in Poland.

"The situation can be adequately met only by the systematic organization of all the philanthropic forces of the United States. A strong central authority is needed such as the government alone can give. What we should do in this, I believe, is that the president of the United States should ask the organizations of the country to join in a movement to coordinate all kinds of relief work, receiving the aid of federal and state governments even to the extent of appropriations. Were we to set the mark at a billion dollars, that would be little enough to meet the extraordinary demands of his worst calamity that the world has ever known. This is the chance that comes in ten thousand years to raise a fund to alleviate all the suffering in all the world."

MR. HERRICK PLEASED WITH PEERLESS CITY

"I am very much impressed with the change and appearance of Portsmouth," said Mr. Herrick Friday evening. "I came here during the days of the McKinley campaign with Mark Hanna and I have noticed a great change. Your city has beautiful homes, splendid paved streets and there is evidence everywhere of the interest taken to make a beautiful city. I am very much impressed with the strength and power of your city and with the spirit of progressiveness shown.

"I am amazed by the kindly reception accorded me. Citizens regardless of politics and views have made me feel at home. It is very gratifying to me and I found it beyond anything I had expected.

"What has touched me more than anything else," said Mr. Herrick in discussing his campaign, "is the evidence of friendliness I have found. There has been no factionalism shown. All of the leaders have come to see me to express their good will and this is most satisfying. I see every evidence of success for the party at the fall election. People have never been so anxious to vote since '96. McKinley used to say that when the people wanted to vote it meant success to the Republican party.

"Now that these nations have attained this degree of efficiency in their industrial plants, it is not likely that they will return to their old methods after this war. It is these nations that the United States will have to compete with to retain the great volume of trade acquired after the war was started.

"The German chancellor said the other day that when the war ended that the different methods employed in manufacturing the products of Germany would vastly improve the production. So with England and with France.

"Some way we should put new rails on the present tariff fence; others advocate the re-enactment of the McKinley law or of the last Republican tariff. My own theory comes from observation that while every industrial depression has had its bad effects, it has also had its good features in that more scientific and more efficient methods of production have been developed out of necessity. Just as in this war, necessity has forced us to make for ourselves products which before we had thought we could not make. So that the tariff of the future must be one that will give adequate protection to efficient producers without being so unduly protective as to diminish the incentive to scientific manufacture.

Yacht Only Boat Available At That Time

"Then in Paris, I wanted to find some ship carrying the Stars and Stripes in order to send the mail pouches to England. The only ship there was the Vanderbilt yacht, where we should have had thousands. Luckily we did not need it later.

"Then the Tennessee, one of the warships was there and we made a ferry boat of the warship, mind you, to carry our citizens across the channel. We must own that it was a deplorable condition. But it was too late for the great emergency.

"I am in favor of a merchant marine but not on the policies now advocated for it. It is needed to carry our goods to all parts of the world and help sustain our commerce.

"There is one other thing I want to speak about and it will be only for a few moments and that is the tariff. As the end of the war approaches this question of tariff policy has increasing significance to our manufacturers and industrial workers, because if we cannot meet on equal terms the renewed foreign competition that will come at the end of the war then our factories must close as they have done in other periods when the tariff failed to equalize conditions of production at home with those abroad.

"I have seen over there what has made me feel what is to come later on. I saw this nation issue an order for the production of munitions in industrial plants. I saw the government interfere with the production, interfere with labor and captain the factories, and put a stringent supervision on the production. And this has been done in England and so in other countries. Unskilled labor has been put in with skilled labor. Conditions of today were changed. There were fifteen thousand women put in some of the factories to do the work of men and production is five times what it was before the war. Take on article that required one hour and twenty minutes to manufacture is now made in six minutes. Others that required two years are being made in a month.

"What has touched me more than anything else," said Mr. Herrick in discussing his campaign, "is the evidence of friendliness I have found. There has been no factionalism shown. All of the leaders have come to see me to express their good will and this is most satisfying. I see every evidence of success for the party at the fall election. Woman's Tardiness In Responding To Call Of Salvation Results In Neighborhood Row

An indiscreet remark attributed to William Brown, an exhorter, at a recent meeting in the Front Street Free Will Baptist church, reflecting upon Mrs. Eric Adams-Chapman's tardiness in responding to the call of salvation, seems to have stirred up a world of trouble among the members, it reaching its climax with the firing of a pistol shot Saturday morning.

Mrs. Pauline Adams, mother of Mrs. Chapman, from what can be gathered, gave Mrs. Charles L. Diamond, wife of the church pastor and next door neighbor, Mrs. Florence James, a "piece of her mind." When a few minutes after she returned to her upstairs apartments next door, the sound of a pistol shot was heard, and excited neighbors saw smoke issuing from a rear window. Mrs. Elizabeth Runner, who owns the property, hurried to the scene, expecting to find that some tragedy had occurred. Mrs. Adams met her at the door and calmly told her that she had been firing her revolver and loading it, when it accidentally discharged.

Mrs. James is said to have told her husband, Jake James, that Mrs. Adams fired a pistol bullet at her. It seems a day or two ago Mrs. Adams and James had had some words—in fact it would be difficult to find anyone in the immediate neighborhood who is not laying claim to having suffered more or less abuse at the hands of Mrs. Adams, to hear their statements, while she, on the other hand, claims that the others have conspired to make trouble for her.

The neighborhood uproar seems to have had its inception in Exhorter Brown failing to make Mrs. Chapman feel that she was saved after she had made her third visit to the altar. Eric is a conscientious young woman and, as she herself puts it, did not wish to go up and declare herself saved when she had no such real feeling. Brown is then said to have openly declared in the meeting that Eric was "faking" God, that while she was not convicted of sin exactly, she was convicted of something. Brown did not specify what that "something" was, but left the impression with the hearers that it must be "something" fierce. Eric says she would not get up right then and there, save for the fact that the meeting was drawing to a close. She said insult was added to injury by Rev. Brown's remark in talking about her to Mrs. Runner.

Mrs. Adams said she had joined church just because she was asked to do so, but that it will be a sad day before she is ever caught inside the portals of the place again.

THE MARKETS

TRADE REVIEW

IN LOCAL FIELDS

Cincinnati, O., July 15.—Trade conditions as found in the Cincinnati fields and vicinity by the reporters under the direction of Bradstreet are contained in the following review issued by Bradstreet:

Cincinnati

Paper and Box Board Mfrs. are working full capacity. Orders and contracts on hand will keep them busy for several months. Paper Box Mfrs. are busy despite the fact that prices have advanced from 26 to 60 per cent. Steel Mills are busy and prices are well maintained although some lines have been compelled to withdraw owing to high prices. Manufacturers in general note a decided conservatism both in inquiries and orders and express the opinion that the high prices in both raw material as well as the finished product has been reached. There is no material change in the coal market. Steam and by-product grades continue strong and active but domestic sizes continue to drag.

Machine Tools.—Mfrs. are still doing a good business, although somewhat hampered by machinist's strike. The labor situation is not serious however, as a good number of machinists have returned to work. Packing Houses are handicapped by labor trouble. Pork and beef butchers and help are in the larger establishments are striking for an increase in wages. The Carriage Industry is still booming and manufacturers report the largest business in years. Collections are normal. Mfrs. of Shoes continue to operate to full capacity. Tanners of leather report good demand. Foundrymen are not rushed for deliveries as heretofore. Pig iron sales have fallen off considerably during the past thirty days. No large orders are reported but optimism is still predominant. Furnaces are working full blast with orders ahead to keep them going until the new year. The record of transactions in the Cincinnati Burley Tobacco market for the first six months reflects a fairly active condition of trade so far as offerings are concerned but not altogether a satisfactory condition so far as receipts of new tobacco upon which future sales depend.

Lumber: Hardwoods are not active at this time owing to the falling mid-season and buyers are at the lumber fair at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Liquors.—There appears to be a disposition on the part of some of the large distillers of Kentucky to operate their distilleries at full capacity, making whiskey while the minority distillery want to limit the output and the Ohio distillers are with the minority and will wage war, should the full capacity plan be put into execution.

Portsmouth

Retail trade continues good. Shoe Manufacturers.—Orders have been booked to keep busy to capacity for the Fall season. Collections are normal.

Shoe Jobbers.—Business good; collections fair.

Grocery Jobbers.—Business this week a bit below that of last week, though the volume continues good. Collections normal.

Hardware Builders' Supplies.—Plumbers' Supplies.—Business active; collections a little slow.

Crops.—Wheat is being cut; threshing will begin next week. The crop is reported as being about only half of a normal yield. Quality fair. Corn is looking good, although rain is badly needed. A blight has taken hold of some sections raising potatoes and there may be a shortage.

Lexington, Ky.

Jobbers of dry goods, groceries and provisions report business good and collections entirely satisfactory. Coal and lumber dealers report business far in excess of last week, and collections good. Hardware and woodenware jobbers are enjoying a good business. The horse and mule market is exceedingly active.

Crops are in good condition.

A REVIEW OF THE

WEEK'S MARKETS

New York, July 15.—Almost continuous liquidation of "war brides" aided and abetted by a formidable short interest, attended the week's operations in stocks, reversals in some of those issues forcing the quoted values to lowest levels of the year. The decline was accompanied by further circumstantial rumor of cancellations of foreign orders, it being noteworthy in this connection that few of the new contracts run into the coming year.

In other instances, such as United States Industrial Alcohol, whose stock registered an extreme loss of over 30 points with only slight recovery, more specific and definite causes were assigned, such as international differences growing out of questions of policy. The break in motor stocks seemed almost inevitable after the recent abortive effort to effect a merger of several of the larger companies.

Rails and other representative stocks were but little affected by the setback in specialties, maintenance of excellent earnings, with prospects of indefinite continuance, proving a strong factor. Leading industrial, chief among which was United States Steel, also resisted pressure. Independent steel and iron companies show record breaking earnings and the important copper producing concerns are increasing their output regardless of the depression of the market.

Domestic monetary conditions assumed greater importance on the temporary rise in call loans to six percent induced largely by the further impairment of local bank reserves which promised speedy correction. The increase in the British bank rate to six percent and announcement of the terms of the new French loan of $100,000,000 by our bankers were the outstanding features of the international situation.

Changes in the European situation failed of direct reflection on the market aside from slight weakness in remittances to the Teutonic countries.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, July 15.—Additional liquidation of specialties accounted for the uncertain trend of today's narrow and professional market, after an initial period of strength. Tennessee Copper was the weak feature, falling 3 points to its lowest price in two years, and causing reactions of a point or thereabouts in other speculative issues. These losses were largely retrieved later. U. S. Steel was firm, Bethlehem Steel rose almost 10 points and Rails were firm when not making actual gains.

Shipping shares and Mexicos were passive, and Sears-Roebuck featured the specialties of the session with a gain of five points. The closing was irregular. Bonds were steady.

Gains for out numbered declines at the opening of today's moderate operations specialties, particularly in autos, equipments and shipping shares, evincing a tendency to make further recoveries. United Fruit scored the most substantial advance, rising over two points, with a point or more for Maxwell, Singer, American Locomotive, Tennessee Copper, U. S. Rubber and Bette Superior. Rails, Pennsylvania excepted, were fractionally higher, with U. S. Steel, Westinghouse and Pittsburgh coal. Dealers indicated the usual week end settlements rather than actual demand.

CHICAGO GRAIN

AND PROVISIONS

Chicago, July 15.—Sultry moist weather in the northwest likely to increase danger from black rust tended to cause an advance today in the wheat market here. Opening prices, which ranged from 3/4 off to a like advance with July at 108 1/2 and September at 109 1/2 to 109 3/4, were followed by a material upturn all around. Temperatures above 100 in Missouri and Kansas lifted the price of corn. St. Louis reported that the intense heat with lack of rain was causing the corn near there to fire. After opening 1/4 off to 1/2 up the market took a decided upward swing. Oats rose with other grain. The hulls were also favored by an active export demand. Lower quotations on hogs weakened provisions. Absence of support continued.

The close was strong, 3 and 3 1/2 to 3 1/2 net higher with July 11 1/2 and Sept. 11 3/4.

Corn closed strong at 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 and 2 1/2 net advance.

WHOOPE! OHIO TROOPS WILL START FOR BORDER

Camp Willis, Columbus, O., July 15.—The "Fighting" Eighth Regiment of the Ohio National Guard today received long expected orders to train at once for the Mexican border. This regiment, the first of the Ohio troops to be ordered south, was to begin training and loading of supplies on railroad cars at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Ohio squadron of cavalry also was ordered to get ready to move to the border, and federal mustering officers stated they believed all of the Ohio Guardsmen will have left Camp Willis in a week. Just when the cavalry squadron will leave was not announced, but the Eighth is expected to leave some time tonight.

Major Robert W. Means, senior federal mustering officer at Camp Willis, announced that he had received instructions from Central Department army headquarters at Chicago to rush to the border as "soon as possible" all Ohio troops "reasonably ready."

The commissary department received orders to equip the Eighth Regiment infantrymen with rations for ten days. The Eighth is expected to go by the Pennsylvania railroad to St. Louis. Its destination was not announced, but it is believed to be either El Paso or San Antonio.

PRESS CLAMOR MAY MEAN BREAK BETWEEN ITALY AND GERMANY

Rome, July 15.—A strong demand has arisen in the press and among the public for cancellation of the agreement between Italy and Germany, whereby the rights of citizens of each country within the other's domain were to be respected, violation of the agreement by Germany being alleged. The situation is such that the relations of Italy and Germany seem to have reached a greater tension than at any time since the war began.

Before leaving Rome in the spring of 1915, Prince Von Buelow, then German ambassador to Italy, concluded an agreement with the Italian government, under which the case of war between Austria and Italy, Germany and Italy pledged themselves to respect the properties and lives of their respective subjects.

This meant for Germany a guarantee of several million dollars' worth of property in Italy held by her subjects and for Italy the safety of 30,000 of her citizens still living in Germany.

The Pelican.
No one would be likely to imagine that so heavy and, in fact, apparently ungainly a bird as a pelican is a king among soaring birds. After much flapping when these great birds have acquired headway the broad wings are spread, and in majestic circles they mount skyward, with only an occasional flap of the wing, often passing beyond the range of one's vision.

Help us to HOLD DOWN—Tire Prices

TIRES, and GASOLINE, "make the Wheels go round!" A Car in the Garage COSTS as much as a Car-on-the-Road, but it pays no dividends, on the investment, so long as it STAYS in the Garage.

The VALUE of the Car,—to its Owner,—narrows down, in the ultimate, to the precise number of Hours he USES that Car, yearly.

If a $2,000 Car be owned for, say, 4 years (then sold for $600.) there has been $1,400 of Car-Value absorbed by the Owner,—equal to, say, $350. per year.

If then, that Car be USED 913 Hours in the year, it would cost him but 33 CENTS per Hour, for Car-Use.

But,—if he used it only HALF that number of Hours, yearly, the Car would cost him 100% MORE for every Hour he used it.

How MUCH he uses it will depend,—to a considerable extent,—upon the PRICE of TIRES and GASOLINE.

This was one of the reasons why we (Jan. 31st, 1915) inaugurated the Goodrich "FAIR-LIST" Propaganda against High-prices, and Padded-Price-Lists, on Tires.

It is a further reason why we NOW keep our own Goodrich Prices DOWN to the very moderate "Fair-List" figures here quoted.

Goodrich "Fair-List" Prices

|-------|-----------------|---------|-------|---------|
| 30x3 | Ford Sizes | $10.40 | 34x4 | $22.40 |
| 30x3½ | (Safety-Treads) | $13.40 | 35x4½ | $31.20 |
| 32x3½ | | $15.45 | 36x4½ | $31.60 |
| 33x4 | | $22.00 | 37x5 | $37.35 |

NOTICE.—These Tires are as perfect as Fabric Tires can be made. But, should any dissatisfaction whatever arise, with any Goodrich Tire, its Owner is invited, and REQUESTED, to take the matter up promptly with us,—the Makers. We will then that Fair, Square, and LIBERAL treatment will always be extended, on all proper adjustments.

The Bald Eagle's Nest.
Among birds the home of the bald eagle is perhaps the most striking, possibly because of the majesty of the bird itself. It appears to the imagination. Built of huge sticks loosely interwoven and situated on some lofty and inaccessible ledge, with the bones of the eagle's victims scattered round about it, it gives a proper setting to the stern and savage character of its builder. Here the eagle reposes supreme, and here year after year he and his mate rear their young. This is the acropolis from which he can scan the whole countryside and, like the robber barons of old, levy toll on all who pass his door.

Made a Part For Her.
Dion Boncanti when his first play, "London Assurance," was accepted by the manager of Covent Garden, London, refused to have the play produced in the original version because it gave no part to Mrs. Nesbitt, an actress for whom he had conceived a high boyish infatuation, and rewrite the play so as to supply her with the role he wished.

The Bald Eagle's Nest.
Among birds the home of the bald eagle is perhaps the most striking, possibly because of the majesty of the bird itself. It appears to the imagination. Built of huge sticks loosely interwoven and situated on some lofty and inaccessible ledge, with the bones of the eagle's victims scattered round about it, it gives a proper setting to the stern and savage character of its builder. Here the eagle reposes supreme, and here year after year he and his mate rear their young. This is the acropolis from which he can scan the whole countryside and, like the robber barons of old, levy toll on all who pass his door.

Made a Part For Her.
Dion Boncanti when his first play, "London Assurance," was accepted by the manager of Covent Garden, London, refused to have the play produced in the original version because it gave no part to Mrs. Nesbitt, an actress for whom he had conceived a high boyish infatuation, and rewrite the play so as to supply her with the role he wished.

KITCHENER PICTURED

The vast library and European connections of the Gaumont company made it possible for the Mutual Weekly to show pictures of Earl Kitchener and the ill-fated ship which was carrying him and his staff, the Cruiser "Hampshire," just as soon as the news was made public. Characteristic pictures of the great soldier and interesting views of the man-of-war are both being shown in Mutual Weekly N. 76.

16 DAY RUN

As an evidence of the continued popularity of Charley Chaplin, the moving picture comedian, Manager Orear, of the Cincinnati general office, refers with pride to a record run of 16 consecutive days of Mr. Chaplin's recent release, "Police" at the Alhambra Theater, on Fifth street, that city.

Margaret Anglin, former dramatic star, has formed a film company of her own. It will be known as the Margaret Anglin Picture Corporation. James Shesgreen, who for four years has served as Miss Anglin's manager, promoted the organization.

Change in ownership in one of the oldest picture houses in Middletown, Ohio, Arnold Skinner succeeds B. S. Leeds as owner of Grand theater.

Geraldine Farrar, the Lasky-Paramount star, and her husband, Lou Tellegen, have gone to Los Angeles to begin their annual summer engagement at the Lasky studios in Hollywood. It is expected that Miss Farrar will do two pictures this summer.

However, in the concluding scenes, "Sunshine Dad" proves himself worthy of the hand of Widow Marimore, a charming person, played by Fay Tincher.

Alice Brady in "Tangled Fates" Coming To Lyric Wednesday

The beautiful and talented artist, Alice Brady, was never so of the charm of the far North, and the thrill of the big cities, a tale of a very exciting romance with a beautiful and happy ending.

"The Price of Malice" at the Columbia Tuesday

Metro's next offering will be "The Price of Malice," a five-part feature picture, in which Hamilton Revelle is starred and Barbara Tennant is featured. This production will be presented at the Columbia, Tuesday. It is a stirring story of diplomatic intrigue, with a novel love tale unfolded in an interesting manner. An unusually strong supporting cast will be seen, which includes William Davidson, Helen Dumas, Frank Glendon, Hugh Jeffrey, William Heck, William Calhoun and other well-known stage and screen artists.

Edmund Breese in "The Song of The Wage Slave" at the Columbia Saturday

"The Song of the Wage Slave," in which Edmund Breese, the eminent dramatic actor has created the stellar role, will be shown at the Columbia Saturday as the next release on the regular program of the Metro Pictures Corporation. The story of this five part photodrama, taken from the poem of the same name by Robert W. Service, author of "The Spell of the Yukon" and other verses, is a distinct innovation in treatment and theme. The story deals with the almost super-

Mae Murray in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," Paramount, At The Lyric Tuesday

A beautiful and exciting romance of the days of the powdered wig and courtly gallants, is "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," which will be the attraction at the Lyric on Tuesday, under the direction of the Jesse L. Lasky company, with beautiful Mae Murray in the title role. Miss Murray will be remembered as the beautiful heroine in the Lasky pictorialization, on the Paramount program, of the famous story of colonial days in Virginia, "To Have and To Hold."

At The Arcana

Another big war drama is today's feature at the Arcana, the movie house of feature pictures and the latest run pictures of the war. Today's two-reeler is a Civil War drama entitled "His Trust and His Trust Fulfilled."

The master, leaving home at the opening of the war to join the Confederate Army, tells his body-servant to take good care of his wife and child. The master is killed in battle; the home is sacked and burned, leaving the woman and child homeless, and the old negro, faithful to his trust, gives up his little cabin for their comfort.

Four years afterward the war has closed, and the negroes leave to enjoy their emancipation, but George remains true to his trust.

Startling events lead up to the climax of the story.

"The Woman Who Followed Me" is a two-part Gold Seal drama. "Her Celluloid Hero" is a Nestor comedy, followed by "Virginia," a Rex drama.

At The Exhibit

"The Leopard's Bride" is a five-part Mutual Masterpiece, in which Margaret Gibson, William Clifford and Nan Christy have the principal roles. The production has an interesting story which brings into play a leopard whose talent as a screen actor is not to be questioned. The story tells of how Captain Morey of the British militia in India is sent by his superior officer and rival in love to a post in the interior. Here, not receiving any mail from the girl he loves, he finally falls sick of jungle fever and is tended by a pretty girl, presumably of Hindoo origin, who falls in love with him, and on the appearance of the Captain's real sweetheart goes into the jungle and sacrifices herself to a leopard.

Mutt and Jeff in one reel of comedy completes the bill. Mutt and Jeff in the Movies is the title of this trip-roaring fun picture.

At The Temple

"The Deathlock" is a five part Mutual Masterpiece. The story follows the trail of a villain and his victims across snow-covered hills to the location of a mining claim of which he tries to obtain possession. The dog theme in the picture trailing the skulls over far-away perspectives are an attraction. The "death lock" has reference to a cruel manner in which the Apache Indians put men to death by locking their knees across a tree in a way that prevents their helping themselves. This method the villain takes advantage of.

At The Strand

"The Cry For Help" is the title of chapter six of "Peg O' the Ring" series. Both Peg and Lund, Jr., escape from the counterfeiters' den after exciting experiences. Secret service men strike a trail which is about to connect Mrs. Lund with the gang, but Peg, in a sudden seizure, hysterically points to Lund, Jr., as the guilty one. The number contains a number of quite thrilling incidents.

"Gaby's Gasoline Glide" is a two-part L. K. comedy of screaming laughter. "The Three Wishes" is a Victor drama of one reel. "Gronches and Smiles," a Lacombe comedy, drama, closes the program.

FLASHES

The recent rainy weather in the East has caused a serious delay in outdoor production work, so that all of the companies now are hustling overtime to make exteriors while the sun shines.

Louis Tracy, author of "The Wings of the Morning," has been commissioned to novelize the Pathe feature film, "The Grip of Evil."

Alice Brady is giving a series of lectures to screen-struck girls in Chicago.

Aerobatic Role

Douglas Fairbanks soon will hold the record as champion house-climber of the movies. In "Climbing With Fate," Fine Arts production, he scales several walls like a cat, shines up a drain-pipe with equal agility and bounces around on roofs of terrifying angles with the ease of a rubber ball.

JULY RELEASES

Releases by the Lubin Company during July of one-act comedies under the personal direction of Clay M. Greene included "Father's Night Off," "Jenkins"

Jinx," "The Winning Number" and "Oh! You Uncle." Mr. Greene's companies for the productions had the services of June Dwyer, Jessie Terrill, Lenore Peacock, Margaret Moore, Florence Williams, Francis Joyner, George R. Raymond, George Clarke, Herbert Fortier and Kempton Greene.

SOME JAWBREAKERS

The recent engagement by the Lubin Company of Garda Polotskova for "Love's Toll," and of Freda Kuszewski for "The Light at Dusk" is said to have prompted resolutions of protest from the society for the protection of composers and proof readers.

Iva Shepard plays the part of a woman who after twenty years meets the man who deserted her in Gaumont's "The Hidden Face."

After having won the title of "King of Comedy" in the spoken drama, Otis Harlan heard the call of motion pictures and is appearing before the camera for the Selig Polyscope Company.

A film and its title are soon parted.

IN SCREENLAND

The kind of man you like to look at and like to meet is Harold Lockwood of the Metro Company.

Clean-appearing, he's a typical young American citizen, and pretty nearly any picture in which his blood hair and well set-up figure appears is sure to go well—for besides the personality he has the "gift"—which means that he can act.

Mr. Lockwood was born in Brooklyn, in 1888. He was on the stage previous to his picture career. He's almost six feet tall, and has brown hair and blue eyes. Nestor, Selig, Bison, Famous Players and American starred him before the Metro Company laid its tentacles on him. Asked what parts he is usually cast as he answers without a moment's hesitation "Love-sick!" Maybe.

But he doesn't make 'em LOOK sick. That's how he gets by. He says his hobbies are—everything, good and bad, but those who know him best say he's an all-round athlete and plays out of doors all the time when he's not working.

No, girls, he's not married. Glad!

Another complete program of the highest class of picture productions will be presented as usual at the Columbia next week, starting on Monday with an unusually attractive "Triangle" program featuring De Wolf Hopper in "Sunshine Dad" and "Fatty" Arbuckle in "The Other Man," a comedy riot in two sparkling reels.

The Metro offering for Tuesday is "The Price of Malice," a five-part production featuring Hamilton Revelle and Barbara Tennant.

"The Marble Heart," from the Fox studio, is announced for Wednesday; dainty Violet Horner is starred in this picture, which was produced in Jamaica by Herbert Brown while there last winter directing the big Annette Kellerman million dollar picture.

William H. Thompson and beautiful Anna Lehr will be seen on Thursday. Triangle program in "Civilization's Child," a most excellent and interesting five part production. "Bucking Society" is the brandy Keystone comedy for Thursday.

Friday brings "The Girl With the Green Eyes," a five-part Pathe production with Kathryn Kaelre, who you will remember in some of the other Triangle dramas.

"The Song of the Wage Slave," with Edmund Breese in the leading role, is Saturday's big attraction; it is a most interesting Metro production taken from "The Spell of the Yukon," by Robert W. Service and as this picture was made in Alaska, you can look forward to the beautiful winter scenes.

In fact you can't afford to miss a single day next week at the Columbia, as each day brings a real master production from the photo-play at the Lyric for every lover of good feature pictures—just give this program the "once over," then don't miss any of them unless you really have to.

Monday—The Vitagraph super-feature, "The Law Decides," 7 reels, starring Harry T. Morey and Dorothy Kelly. A great, big smashing drama of today, all that can be expected of a "mere picture."

Tuesday's Paramount feature—Mae Murray in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," David Belasco's famous play, supplemented with a Paramount-Bray cartoon comedy.

Wednesday—World film-Brady made picture, Alice Brady in "Tangled Fates," a very exciting romance with a beautiful ending.

Thursday—Billie Burke in "The Gathering Storm," No. 5 of Gloria's Romance, and the big feature, "The Painted World," starring Anita Stewart and Harry T. Morey. Don't miss this program.

Friday brings the famous diminutive beauty for the first time in pictures, Peggy Hyland in "Saints and Sinners," on the Paramount program, and a reel of Burton Holmes travel pictures.

Saturday's masterpiece is a great picture, Florence Turner in "Far From the Madding Crowd," in five acts.

Every picture of the week is a real feature that cannot disappoint anyone, and of course the music is always a feature at the Lyric.

CRASHING ARTILLERY FIRE OF THE BRITISH EFFACES GERMAN DEFENSE LINES

British Front in France.
July 15. (Via London).—British generals and staff officers are showing elation over the results of the night attack against the German second line, although careful to state that the great task against a powerful foe is only barely started. Soon after daylight the joyful news of the British success slipped into a telephone message over the area occupied by the British army. As a spectacle to an eye witness this action of the second big stage of the battle of the Somme surpassed that of July 1. Taking needed ground for organizing new trenches and throwing out small parties, who dug themselves in, the army has been gradually gaining a position from Ovillers, La Boisselle and Montauban, a distance of four miles, from which to deliver a blow and until many points were within 200 yards of the German second line. Meanwhile, the shells of the British artillery could be seen cutting wire and making thorough preparations of which General Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander, insists there is evidence on every hand.

Word Passed Along.

"Tomorrow morning at three," came the laconic word yesterday evening preceded by the usual preliminary bombardment, "only a little better."

The ground gained by the British on July 1, and in subsequent operations gave the Associated Press observer a view point from which the whole line of attack could be seen. The faint moonlight enabled the gunners dimly to see their work, the infantry and the contour of the ground. "This is a real daylight show," said one of the gunners.

Seemingly, as the observer pushed audaciously close to the German lines, there was the greatest concentration of guns of all calibers probably ever made in a given area. From behind the German trenches gained on July 1, darted the dagger flashes through a blanket of night. One, two, three, four, battery after battery was shooting at high speed, from the bottom of the hillside to the top. The scene of artillery power was no less indescribable than the thrilling suggestion of the waiting infantry battalion lines which were seen going into position before the battle.

Infantry Springs Forward.

At the moment the assault started it seemed there was no interval in the thunders as the guns moved forward their curtain of shell bursts in front of the first wave of infantry advancing across the zone between their trenches and the German lines.

In the direction of Tongueval a big fire was seen. It was the village or a storehouse burning, as the bright spot was growing to a steady point in the field of gun flashes. Then, soaring heavenward went a rocket signal light which gave the positions gained in the attack. Commanders in the rear answer with other signals, while what had been the German strongholds half an hour or an hour before were burning red patches, spread with the sparks of roman candles. This method of communication is a difficult part of the business of directing an army under cover of darkness.

At the first flush of dawn the first British aeroplane came humming from its aerodrome toward the German lines, and the saw-sage-shaped observation balloons arose together into the air into a vague scene of the oblong and grotesque monitors. Out of the blanket of which the guns were flashing arose the white flashes of the maze of old German trenches, the ribbons were rods, and finally, the dark masses became Maetz and other now famous woods, and the gaunt finger points the trunks of trees which had shaded the highways, but now were denuded of limbs by the shell fire.

While the smoke clouds from the British lines were carried by favorable winds and the shells made other points of the line indistinct, the ridge of Tongueval, where the British burrowed forward against commanding positions and a stubborn, cunning and brave foe, was seen distinctly to be in their possession. More lines of troops were moving through the German curtains of shell fire to the support of those who had gained the hotly desired summit and now were looking down hill where the German guns are hidden and with the Bapaume ridge in the distance. Behind them all was the organization which had plotted the action of the army, and back of those were battalions awaiting orders.

A sergeant of artillery, of the typical ruddy-faced "John Bull" type, setting stiff on his horse after a sleepless night, directing the columns of Caissons, hurrying up ammunition on to the greedy guns, called out:

"Mind your wheel horse. Now, all together like I taught you to do."

The wheels with their padded and noiseless axles went up the embankment with every rider urging his straining mount.

can put up our industries on a firm foundation, but not otherwise. Such a tariff will make goods cheaper. It should be an intelligent tariff and a productive tariff.

Revision of Tariff Is Advocated

"It is then a matter of the utmost importance that the tariff be revised to put the country in a state of economic readiness for the trade war that is sure to follow the European conflict. It is the only way to insure the survival of those new industries which the war has brought us. It is the only way to insure that our great staple industries will be kept in active operation for the benefit of employer and employee alike, when the direct and indirect effects of the war orders have ceased. It is the only way to insure sufficient revenue for the expense of government without continued and increased resort to those unusual and burdensome forms of taxation.

"We, for some reason lost the good will and confidence in a large degree of many of the nations. There was a time when the Stars and Stripes were synonymous with confidence and strength and power throughout Europe. It is not the case now, I regret to say, that the Stars and Stripes are held in the same high regard and the fear with which the other nations held it is gone.

"This nation was established to be an exponent of a government for the people in the western hemisphere, a refuge for the oppressed and a champion of freedom and justice. If these high ideals are to survive this time of world upheaval there must be a return to that spirit of idealism which characterized our fathers of fifty years ago fought to establish then, a subordination of self in the interest of the many, a rebirth of that serene faith in the God of our fathers which was ever their inspiration and guide. There must be a uniting in working harmony of all interests of America for a common purpose; and that purpose may not be only the advancement of our own nation but of the world if we can make a government by the people a workable instrument to express the ideas and the will of our people.

Our Future Is In Our Own Hands

"Our future is in our own hands and whether we shall be contented to drift with the tide of events, or whether we shall meet the future ready and confident, secure in our own purpose and strength, is for us to determine. The ancient virtues of our race are not dead. The spirit of idealistic devotion to the principles of liberty and justice in which our fathers founded this nation still lives. Let us see to it that out of our present trials there shall come a people united in love of country, reconsecrated under God to the service of country in a better, purer Americanism than we have ever known.

"I want to say that these things can be brought about by the election of Charles Hughes as president of the United States in November. There is always a change when the people get so they cannot stand it any longer.

"A strange thing happened at the Chicago convention and it was one of the most strange conventions we have ever had. It shows the decline of the present political system and the dawn of a new one, where public sentiment controls.

"Many civic organizations are taking a part in the affairs of the nation. There has been an awakening of the citizens and they are now looking after the welfare of their country. Selfish interests have been ignored and now the citizens have begun to recognize the need of looking after his neighbor.

"This convention demonstrates the change. I venture to say that there was not a political leader there who believed that Hughes was the man to be nominated. But now the will of the people is expressed. There was sufficient pressure brought to bear by public sentiment to nominate a man whom the American people want.

"Hughes so typifies the character that is needed to solve the problems and he was the one the people wanted and I think that is why he got the nomination.

"You have a young governor and you are going to nominate him for re-election this fall. It is a foregone conclusion. Let us all get together as we all have got together and determine those things which are for the best interests of Americanism and forget all of the selfish interests. I understand that your governor has been criticized. I have been away and do not know. Supposing he did make a mistake or two, you cannot hold that against him. We all make mistakes at times.

"But he must be elected this fall. You cannot afford to have a Democrat in. Some years ago you changed governors. You elected Mr. Patterson," declared the speaker with a quaint smile. "I did not think you had done the right thing then. No use going into ancient history. Now there are fourteen or fifteen millions of dollars in a treasury and then there were only six millions and in a busted treasury at that.

"We know that beyond the obscurity that clouds our course a new order of things is confronting the world as the result of the momentous events of the present. We know that for us of the United States citizenship can no longer be anything but a matter of first concern, and the services of the nation a duty standing ahead of all selfish interests. We have a feeling that in some way our vast resources of men and things, the greatest that any nation has ever possessed may be used to save the world from self destruction—that by divine designation the government for the people may be instrumental in the preservation and advancement of civilization. There is instinctive within us a giant strength. To make this giant power effective for the welfare of the world is our vital problem.

"I thank you kindly for your patience and realize that you have been standing there and I take it for granted by your act that you are interested and I hope that after August 3, I may be permitted to return here to make a speech against the Democratic party."

Militia Now U. S. Guards, Drilling For Border Duty

Camp Willis, Columbus, O., July 15.—With the mustering of the Ohio National guardsmen into the federal service completed, there is nothing left today for the soldiers to do but pass the physical examinations before they are full-fledged U. S. National guardsmen.

It will probably be five days before the physical examinations are completed. Meanwhile the troops will continue the drills and exercises designed to harden and fit them for border duty whenever that may come.

Officers of the quartermaster and ordnance departments will proceed with the distribution of the supplies which have been sent here by the government.

Consideration of complaints of the food supply at the camp will be undertaken today by Governor Willis and camp officials.

Submarines Supplied By Drifting Depots

New York, July 15.—The Italian steamer Duca degli Abruzzi which arrived here today left Naples with all lights out and took a zigzag course through the Mediterranean to avoid submarines. On July 3, about five o'clock in the morning the passengers were aroused by firing.

They rushed on deck and found the crew were firing from the guns mounted on the stern of the ship at a floating object which later proved to be a huge iron drum. These drums, the officers said, are numerous in the Mediterranean, the Austrians setting them afloat with supplies of oil and gasoline for the purpose of supplying submarines.

LOSS SHOWN IN OIL PRODUCTION

Lima, July 15.—Crude oil production for the first six months of 1916 in the United States reached a total of 148,000,000 barrels with Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana contributing a total of 12,000,000 barrels of that amount, according to statistics compiled here. As compared with 1915 this is a loss of 2,500,000 barrels with Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana dropping 250,000 barrels of this total.

During the first half of the year the stocks in the central states were reduced 675,000 barrels and those of Illinois 1,100,000 barrels. At the same time the stocks in Oklahoma and the mid-west fields increased 3,500,000 barrels. Statistics show that the production of the first half year have gone almost directly into consumption.

The first sharp decline in crude oil prices in a year came today when the Texas company announced a general reduction of ten cents a barrel on all light grades.

She also denies that the water throwing between her and a little nephew prompted her act, as claimed by her sister. She winds up her letter as follows:

"No one knows why I took poison and I don't think they will ever find out because there is no one but myself who knows and I don't think I will tell them for it does not bother them one bit."

Lesson III.—Third Quarter, For July 16, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvii, 22-34.
Memory Verses, 22, 23—Golden Text, Acts xvii, 28—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

While Paul walked at Athens for the coupling of Silas and Timothy he was so stirred by the idolatry which he saw that not only in the synagogue did he talk to the Jews, but daily in the market place he preached Jesus and the resurrection to all who would listen to him. And as they delighted in any new thing, this was certainly the newest they ever heard, and they desired to hear more. So they brought him to a public place where he could tell them more fully of this, to them, new doctrine (verses 19-21). The thought of the dead coming to life again was too much for them, and while there were some who believed others mocked, even as they do to this day (verses 32-34). The newest thing to this very day is the old, old story of salvation by the sacrifice of the Lamb of God, as told so vigorously by Rev. William Sunday and others, but as strenuously opposed as in the long ago by the enemies of Christ. Scentizing intelligent men still scoff at the resurrection of the body and the thought of a body of flesh and bones without blood. Ministers everywhere do not believe that the kingdom can come till Christ comes again, but speak of it as now here, to be advanced or extended, and the truths of last week's lesson in reference to this coming for and with His saints are simply ridiculous. But there are some who believe God.

The people of Athens were very superstitious, or, as in the R. V. margin, religious, and seemed to worship all the gods they had ever heard of, and lest they might have omitted one they had an altar with the inscription, "To the unknown god," and this gave Paul his topic. It is one of the saddest truths of the ages and even of our own time that the true God is largely unknown. "Israel doth not know." "They know not the thoughts of the Lord."
"Hast thou not known me, Philippi?"
"O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee" (John 1:3; Luke 17:25; John xiv, 9; xvii, 25). God can be known only in Jesus Christ, and therefore all who will not receive Jesus Christ as God do not know the true
God. Speaking to gentiles, Paul began at the beginning and told them of Him who created all things and who therefore needed nothing from the creatures whom He had made, as only in Him do all live and move and have their being, and He giveth to all life and breath and all things (verses 22-28). It must have been humiliating to these proud and wise Greeks to be told that they were of the same blood as other nations and that God their Creator had placed them on the earth just where they were (verse 28).

It is another great truth, and but little considered, that when the Most High, the possessor of heaven and earth, divided to the nations their inheritance He did it with reference to the children of Israel, although they were not then in existence (Gen. x, 25; Deut. xxxii, 8); so that, as one has said,
both historically and geographically, Israel is the great center. That, however, was not a truth for the people of Athens just then, for Paul desired to lead them to the true God and to repentance. He told them of Him whom God raised from the dead, the Creator who had come to the world which He had made, but was unknown in it and rejected by it and crucified, but now alive forevermore and appointed to be the Judge of all mankind; and not only was the Judge appointed, but also the day, which we learn elsewhere would cover a thousand years, for one day is with the Lord as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day (II Pet. iii, 8). This whole age through which we are passing since Christ was crucified is spoken of as an hour, and a day, and an acceptable year (John v, 25; I Cor. vi, 2; Luke iv, 19). The next thousand years is also called an hour, beginning and ending with a resurrection (John v, 28).

There shall be a resurrection both of the just and unjust, but thousands years shall intervene between the two (Acts xxiv, 15; Rev. xx, 5, 6). All who have before lived shall come into judgment before the same Judge, but not all at the same time. All who truly receive the Lord Jesus as savior, "and are crucified with Christ" (Gal. ii, 20), and have passed from death to life and shall not come into judgment for sin (John v, 24). But all such must appear before the judgment seat of Christ, where only saved people shall appear, to have their works approved or disapproved, to be rewarded or suffer loss and to be appointed to their places in His kingdom (Rom. xiv, 10;
I Cor. v, 10). Then we shall come with Him to judge the living nations, according to Matt. xxv, 31, with Joel
iii, 1, 2; Zechar. xiv, and set up His kingdom. The rest of the dead who did not rise in the first resurrection shall be judged at the great white throne after the thousand years (Rev.
xx, 11-15). In the face of such plain statements I cannot understand how any who read their Bibles with ordinary carelessness can think or speak of all people that have ever lived standing before the great white throne. We only need to allow the thoughts of God
to displace our thoughts.

Tollo Water Will Clean Your Liver and Start You Feeling Good in Half an Hour

Too much rich, starchy food clogs the liver. The drains become choked with waste matter and cannot discharge the bile as nature requires. When the little bile tubes become stopped, the bile is gradually forced back into the system, making the skin yellow and the tongue coated.
The stomach gets upset, causing gas to form, you feel stuffy and uncomfortable after every meal, have a dull or sick headache and become tired, nervous and rundown.

The surest and quickest relief is a Tollo Water liver bath. Get a 15-cent bottle from any drug store and take a third of a tun-tablespoon in a glass of plain water before breakfast. In half an hour it will dissolve and flush out all the waste that is clogging the liver, leaving every tiny tube clean and fresh.

When the liver is clean and active you can eat what you like without suffering afterwards; you will never be constipated, nervous and unstrung.

Tollo Water is concentrated and bottled at Dawson Springs, the famous Kentucky Health Resort. It flushes and bathes the liver without irritation and does not make you sick or leave you weak and exhausted.

To get the best results and be sure you are rid of all the poison your system has absorbed, you should take it every morning for a few days.

"How do you like my new hat? Isn't it a dandy? Only $10!" exclaimed a delighted lady to her husband.
"Great Scott! You said the hats could be bought at from $2.50 up."
"Yes, dear; this is one of the ups!"

Its Class.
The service at All Saints' church, corner of Fourth and Court streets on Sunday evening appeals to all, who while unwilling to remain in church for an hour at this time of the year, are not averse to attending a shorter service. Vespers commence at 7 p. m. are over by 7:35 p. m., and within this brief space of time opportunity is found for prayer and praise and instruction. In sermon, which is never more than seven minutes long, is as practical as it is brief. You will enjoy this service and you are cordially invited to attend. Long prayers are by no means indicative of true devotion, and long services at this season of the year may do more to hinder than to help the soul in its quest for God.

This short service, combining heret-hity with edification, as bound to help you, and there is no good reason for your absence from it if you are in the city.

All Saints' Brotherhood Bible man. The class meets in the

All members in the city are urged to be present at the three remaining summer sessions of the class.

Is Bitten By Dog

Carl Kinker, molder at the Portsmouth Stove and Range Works in the East End, was bitten by a dog Friday evening as he was on his way home from work.
As he was passing Fifth and Campbell avenue a dog, a strange one in the neighborhood, ran at Kinker and sank its teeth into the calf of his left leg. No one knew who owns the dog. Kinker naturally fled the police to kill the dog. He lives at 1913 Sixth street.

52,000 Of Eastern Guards At Front

New York, July 15.—Fifty-two thousand National Guardsmen from the department of the east are now at the Mexican border,
according to Matt. xxv, 31, with Joel
iii, 1, 2; Zechar. xiv, and set up His kingdom. The rest of the dead who did not rise in the first resurrection shall be judged at the great white
throne after the thousand years (Rev.
xx, 11-15). In the face of such plain statements I cannot understand how any who read their Bibles with ordinary carelessness can think or speak of
all people that have ever lived standing before the great white throne. We only need to allow the thoughts of God
to displace our thoughts.

LOCAL MAN INTERVIEWS DEUTSCHLAND CAPTAIN

Seated in one of the luxurious leather chairs in the spacious lobby of the Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore a man small of stature, clean skinned and snappy eyed sat contentedly.
Eagerly he watched delegates to the Elks' Grand Lodge meeting in that city as they exchanged pleasantries, beamed upon each other and told of the good time they were having. Now and then the undersized man, dressed in an inconspicuous manner would smile, a smile that conveyed the impression that he was enjoying the activities of the antlered delegates.
Surveying the features of the man huddled in the leather chair critically, Karl Zoellner of this city, a member of the credential committee of the Elks Grand Lodge turned to a friend and said, "I honestly believe that is Captain Paul Koenig, whose marine feat of bringing the sub-merchant marine Deutschland across the Atlantic is now known throughout the civilized world and I am going over to find out."
Mr. Zoellner said as he started in the direction of the "little man," who to Karl's extreme gratification was none other than Captain Paul Koenig in the flesh.
"Well, sir, you look so much like the picture I have seen of Capt. Paul Koenig that I simply had to approach you to appease my consuming curiosity," Mr. Zoellner said as he firmly gripped the hand of the gallant captain, who evading the enemies' ships safely landed the Deutschland in an American harbor.
"I will have to congratulate you on your ability to pick me out or your American photographers who so ably have pictured me," replied Capt. Koenig, and with this remark the two men sat down and enjoyed an animated chat.
Presently an orchestra in the hotel drifted softly into the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," and Capt.
Koenig was the first man to reach his feet, and doffing his cap, he waived it aloft and when those in the lobby learned that it was really and truly Capt. Koenig they cheered him lustily and saluted him with their prettiest smiles and with their hats waving enthusiastically above their heads. Mr. Zoellner said Friday upon his arrival home from Baltimore.
"And when the orchestra played 'Wacht Am Rhein' Capt. Koenig smiled expan-sively and applause followed the rendition of this German national air.
Mr. Zoellner says he found
Capt. Koenig a modest, unas-

Tale Of "Two Mains" Or Who Turned Off The Wrong Main

When is a gas main a water main? When the present city water works crew starts out to shut off a "water main." So the story goes and truth is attached to it, the water works crew several nights ago was called to Eighth and Broadway streets in the East End to repair a water main. Did they do it? Yes, almost. They shut off the first main they came in contact with, but unfortunately it was a gas main that furnished the East End brick plant of the Harrison-Walker Co. its gas. When the gas supply began to fail naturally the brick company complained to the gas officials and they sent out a crew to investigate. The crew soon discovered the trouble and turned on the gas again. In the meantime the water

Dogs and Fies.

If your dogs are troubled with fleas a very simple way to get rid of the pests is to provide beds of fresh cedar shavings or, better, cedar excelsior in the kennels or wherever the dogs sleep. The scent is not at all unpleasant to the dogs, but is abhorrent to the fleas. When a dog's coat gets thoroughly scented not only do the fleas leave him while asleep, but they will not jump upon him when he is out during the day. Try it.—Brooklyn Eagle.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 15.—Mrs. Oscar C. McDaniel, wife of the prosecuting attorney of Buchanan county, is in critical condition at a hospital here today as a result of an attack upon her in her home last night. A man fired five shots at her husband, who engaged in a pistol duel with him. The attack was carefully planned and the police connect it with an anonymous letter received by McDaniel about a week ago. McDaniel was called down town by a telephone message about 11:30 p. m.

"Checked out of Dallas by Clerk Fred Meyers, of the Adolphus Hotel, we made the three hundred and two miles to San Antonio in nine hours and twenty-two minutes," read Morris' wife. "Arriving at San Antonio we were checked in by K. S. Israel, auto editor of the San Antonio Express, and found we had cut down the best previous road record by over three hours. In making this record, we beat the famous Katy Limited on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas line by one hour and thirty-three minutes. This is the fastest train running between the two points. Half of the distance was over black, muddy roads, so rough that we thought the car would not stand up under the strain.

The 1918 Dort motor car occupies a unique place in the light car field, says David Stahler, local agent. With all the standard equipment, strength, power and refinements of cars selling for a much higher price it affords the buyer the economies of first cost and upkeep of a car of much lower price. Dort motor cars are built up to a standard at a price consistent with the Dort product. Their price represents simply a legitimate percentage of profit above cost of material and work-

When the new factory was erected five years ago it was the largest exclusive tire plant in America. Yet to take care of the Firestone business since then it has had to be tripled in size.

Economy? Consider This--

Here is the surprise in motor car values for 1917! It sets new economy standards. It is light in weight, but 2040 lb. Exceptionally long tire-mileage results. It contains the ingenious idea of tiny piston ports for oil conservation. Owners report 18 to 26 miles to a gallon of gasoline, governed by conditions. To our knowledge there is no other car you can purchase today that will give you this unusual economy. This, in addition to striking beauty of lines, roominess and 34.9 horsepower grit commend it to your use. Come see this forward stride in motor car engineering today at your showrooms.

Herick meeting, served to lessen the crowd that assembled at the First Christian church Friday evening, to listen to the cantata as rendered by the big chorus under the direction of Mrs. Tuning, of Huntington, W. Va., nevertheless those present were enthusiastic in voicing their approval of the rendition of the fine program. Not the least slip-up occurred, each person doing well his part and every minute of the one hour and a half was hugely enjoyed. The "stage" was bedecked with potted plants and presented a most attractive appearance. The solo work of Miss Helen Warner, Mrs. Tuning, Mr. Lewis Alderman and Mrs. Lloyd Grayden were especially praise-worthy.

It is thought the choir will reproduce the cantata when the weather becomes cooler. Three Huntington gentlemen motored to Portsmouth for the purpose of attending the cantata and congratulating Mrs. Tuning upon the success of the affair. The same cantata will be rendered at Huntington under the direction of Mrs. Tuning on the evening of July 18.

Mrs. Harrison Lamb, of Huntington, and nieces, the Misses Rita and Doris Oakes, of Wheelersburg, were guests yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stratford, of Gay street.

The Huntington Advertiser says: "Graves and Forest Williams returned to Portsmouth after a few days' visit to Huntington relatives. 'Misses Julia Le Bau, Amizetta Northcott, Clara and Alice Low Wilson, Maxine Murray, Carolyn Lear, Sally McCormick, Elizabeth McCooch, Mabel Anderson, Mildred McVay, Mary Hagen, Messrs. Graves and Forest Williams, of Portsmouth, Ed Fithum, Will Euslow, Macon Jones, Howard Emmons, Eustace Tompkins, Murray Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Harshall, Mrs. Maude Dudley were among those who spent Thursday evening at Cliffside park."

Miss Goldie Patton, of Gay street, was hostess at this month's meeting of Mrs. Frank Appel's Sunday school class of Trinity church on Thursday evening. Plans for an outing in September were made. Miss Patton served dainty refreshments to about fifteen of the class members, at the end of the business meeting.

The Misses Lillian and Adelia Digel, from Massillon, O., are spending a few days at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Lindenmeyer.

Miss Anne Foster, of Gallia street, will leave Sunday morning for an extended visit among friends and relatives in Cincinnati.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, O. Office Phone 62.

will want to be strong and healthy. Why don't you talk this over freely and honestly with the man? And remember, it is better to break the engagement now than to marry the man without your own consent.

Dear Miss Wise: I have a daughter 18 years old who has just graduated from high school. She is all tired out and needs a rest, but I cannot make her realize this. She has been offered a chance to work in an office and she is crazy to do the work. I want her to rest for about three months and she doesn't want to. The position will not remain open and she must accept it at once if she takes it. I tell her that if she doesn't get that position she can get another. What do you think of this matter?

A MOTHER.
Since your daughter wants to get to work let her try it. Work in an office will be so different from school work that the change will rest her. Probably her interest in having something to do will be far more beneficial than three months of vacation.

Dear Miss Wise: I am 16 years old and am very thin and not pretty. I have a sister two years older than I am and she is pretty and very popular. She will never do any work at home and my mother doesn't make her. She is my father's pet, too. I have to wash the dishes and she never helps and I have to dust and make beds, too, and help with the cooking. I have not as pretty clothes as the other girls at school, and nobody cares. Sometimes I think I can't stand living this way any longer. What should I do? I don't think my parents love me, and my sister is ashamed of me. My father says I must stay at home and help with the housework, but I want to work in an office. What shall I do? I will not be allowed to go to work for two years at least.

UNHAPPY GIRL.
Since you will not be allowed to go to work for two years, you will have to make the best of things at home and be as happy as you can. Don't appear abused and sulky. It is certainly true that your parents will be kinder to you if you are pleasant and cheerful. Gloomy thoughts will express themselves in your countenance and they should be avoided. Cheerful, sunny thoughts will also express themselves and will make you better looking. You can be tolerably happy if you accept conditions as inevitable, and make the best of them. It may help to put your best into everything you do, so that when you are free to work somewhere else you will work well and accurately and with enthusiasm. Try very hard to please your parents and sister and make them think you are happy and contented and I think they will in turn appreciate you and treat you kindly.

Dear Miss Wise: Please help me decide what to do. I am engaged to a man who has been out of university six years, and in that time has achieved no particular success. His father is one of the best known attorneys in the state, but the son did not study law, but dabbled in everything at school and ended with a B. A. degree. He has a position now which pays him fairly well, but he will never advance any in it. What I am wanting to explain to you is this: As long a time as my fiancé has been out of school, he can talk of nothing but college. He was one of the football heroes of college, and can talk of nothing but the glory surrounding those days. He has made no new friends, and talks only of the big times at school. Do you think a man of that kind would make a satisfactory husband? I will admit that I am tired hearing about "when I was at Yale," but nothing is of as great importance to him as the things that happened when he was there. Do you believe I am justified in breaking my engagement?

MARY ELOISE.
I do not know that the reason you advance is sufficient to cause you to break your engagement, but I do not believe you care enough for the man to marry him, and that that is always a reason why an engagement should be broken. It is pretty safe to assume that, when a man gets on a woman's nerves before she is married to him, married happiness is a remote possibility. It usually takes a year or two for the glamour surrounding college life to wear off before a man "finds himself." Evidently the man of whom you write has not had many of the lumps in life, and has not thoroughly awakened to his own place in the world, and then, of course, he may be one of the people to whom college was the one great event, and after that, he is willing to pass into mediocrity.

Dear Miss Wise: I am a girl almost 21 years old and I am in love with a man of 26 and I have reason to think that he loved me. He has become very much in love with a friend who is visiting me and a hasty marriage has been planned. I know that he will never be happy with her and I wish to spare him from an unhappy married life. Can you help me?

M. B. N.
The man may be happier than you think he will. He has chosen his own future and it is not your place to interfere with his plans. You might do what the girls in novels and the movies do. Pretend to be in love with another man and jealousy may awaken him to the fact that after all you are the girl he loves. Since a hasty marriage has been planned anything you try will probably be too late to do any good.

Local German's View Of European War

(Written by Louis F. Korth, former Editor of The Correspondent.)

Friday, July 14, 1916.
The appalling slaughter of Europe's best manhood in the fair fields and hills of the old Picardie from the Arras-Albert railroad to the river Somme for possession of the fortified ridge which covers the German positions and communications to the east of road and river is going into its third week but has not brought as yet the hoped for results to either British and French aside of those pictured in the blooming London and Paris press stories.

What has been gained to date on ground by the allies in their present offensive does not even compare to that made in the fruitless September and October drive of last year at Loos and Tabbure, although undertaken with much larger forces, including the new Kitchener millions, and many more batteries on a considerably broader front, while the German directive, ignorant of any secret plans of the enemy, has to count with all kinds of possibilities along the whole four hundred mile front.

In spite of great claims of General Joffre and Haig of progress in the woods which you can't find follow on the chart they have advanced but little since their last bold bolt.

A few days ago the French captured the woods and village of Biaches south of the Somme and Paris gave out that they were but one mile distant from Peronne, but it concealed the fact that the ground taken is part of the St. Radegonde meadows in the Somme Bend close to Peronne across which the railroad is carried on stilts. It gave the Germans no pain to vacate it, because their defenses are on the main line back of it.

Last Monday the French took the La Maisonneuve farm and the hill on which it stands but the Germans regained most of it by a counter stroke. The British took the village of Cantalunon on the same ridge but the Germans held the flanking positions. Both places were taken by a joint attack of British and French.

That the Germans are now on the offensive is inferred from the following London cable of Wednesday: "The Germans, heavily reinforced, delivered strong attacks against the British on the Somme and gained ground in Mametz and Trones woods."

Berlin states: "Mametz (the village in the woods north of the Somme) was taken from the British and Barleux (south of Peronne and the river) from the French-African troops in a desperate hand to hand combat." The report further says: "I who used three bottles, and I gladly say I have never had any more trouble with my head. I can work hard all day now, and get up the next morning as bright and strong as ever. I know that Cardui saved my life, and I recommend it to other women who suffer, for I am sure it will help them, if they will only try it."

HEAD SO DIZZY COULD NOT STAND

Lady Felt Like Falling at Times on Account of Trouble Which Was Finally Relieved by Cardui.

Nelsonville, Ohio.—"About four years ago," writes Mrs. Minnie Perry, of this town, "I had such spells with my head, I thought I could not live. I tried many different kinds of remedies, but they did me no good. It seemed I got worse, and my head would just get so dizzy, I would fall wherever I was standing, and I could not walk, unless I held up by something. The trouble all seemed to be in my head.

About a year ago I saw Cardui, the woman's tonic, advertised and sent for a bottle. I got so much better that I used three bottles, and I gladly say I have never had any more trouble with my head. I can work hard all day now, and get up the next morning as bright and strong as ever. I know that Cardui saved my life, and I recommend it to other women who suffer, for I am sure it will help them, if they will only try it."

brought it.
London says: "The crown prince is believed to be preparing for a series of the greatest storming actions of the war. The battle is fast approaching a climax. Already the German infantry is almost before the battlements of Fort Souville. The citadel of Verdun is a mass of ruins. The German artillery has had the last French defenses under fire for a week and the concrete and steel works have been shattered to dust.

In the east the Russians are yet fighting hard for the roads to Lemberg, on the Stockholms toward Kovel and on the Strya toward Lutsk and Wladimir-Volynsk, on the Strya west of Volynsk and Buczacz, between Dniester and Pruth at Delatin and Kolomea, and in Southern Bukovina they are trying to reach the passes into Hungary along the Moldava, but nowhere have they had the grand successes which they boast of. Despite their inferiority in numbers the defenders so far have held their own against ferocious Russian onslaughts everywhere.

Although the Germans themselves have been hard pressed again lately between Strya and Stockholms in Volhynia, especially on the Sarni-Kovel road and in the Lutsk salient, they have reinforced the Austrians on their lines, where German divisions have been sandwiched between the Austria forces to strengthen them on weak points.

Berlin admits that on the Strya curve General Linsingen had to take back his forces from Czarnikow, where the Rovno-Sarni-Kovel railroad crosses the river, on account of too heavy pressure on his flanks. He withdrew in good order however to a new line from where he commands the bridgehead, but it was done under severe rear guard fighting, which appears in Russian accounts as "the great victory at Kolki."

Operations on Strya and Stockholms seem to have been successful as the German war office has since announced, that the Russian advance in the direction of Kovel was checked and the Russian forces moving against the Stockholms line defeated at four points on the Kovel-Rovno railroad, especially at Hulevica, where the Germans took 700 prisoners and several machine guns.

A later report of the German war office says that a large Russian column aiming for Kovel, which tried to cross the Stockholms line, was driven back. Those who had crossed, 800, were captured. From the tenth to the twelfth of July, 1,332 prisoners and 12 machine guns were taken on the Stockholms.

The victory of General Bothmer at Plunach south of the Dniester and east of Stanislaw, prompted the Russians to bring up heavy masses and force Bothmer to abandon the Lower Strya and take up a new position twelve miles west of the river, which was accomplished without pursuit.

The heaviest fighting in the Dniester country has been going on in the Bistrica valley west of Kolomea, where the Russians have been trying to drive a wedge into the Austrian lines between Bothmer and Plunach, so as to isolate the latter and force Bothmer back. They made different onslaughts but were repulsed with big loss to them.

The same report comes from Buczacz on the Strya, where Bothmer flanked and defeated the Russians, taking 400 prisoners. The Russian drive through the Bukovina seems to have been checked. The Austrians took the offensive and defeated the Russians in the Upper Moldava Valley after forcing a passage of the river at Breaza. In their retreat the Russians lost several guns and fifty-six loaded wagons in the river marshes.

On Prince Leopold's front in Lithuania very heavy fighting has taken place again northeast of Baranovichi, where the Russians employed their masses in five heavy attacks. All of them were shattered, which saves Pinsk, the Russian objective. It was the most sanguinary fighting on this line since it was established.

Vienna says: "Siebenbuerger regiments fought behind completely demolished trenches in a bitter hand to hand combat with overwhelming Russian masses but did not give a foot of ground. A thousand dead Russians were counted on the field after the battle.

Hindenburg in the north reports: "In the repulse of several Russian attacks on Lake Narocz (Dnepr front) we captured over 400 prisoners."

Austria has had to call back every available man from Serbia, Montenegro and Austria. 60,000 have passed through Hungary to the Bukovina front lately.

On the Austro-Italian front heavy fighting has taken place again at Gorizia on the Isonzo and the Tolmino bridge head. The Italians a week ago claimed that they had captured Tolmino but Vienna states that they were driven back. They took Monte Corno but the Austrians recaptured it. Italian attacks between Adige and Brenta were repulsed.

The Austrian cruiser Novarra met a group of five British patrol boats in the Otranto Strait off the Italian coast and sank all of them. Three of them went down after their boilers had exploded. The cruiser saved a number of the crews.

German naval aeroplanes have bombarded the British coast fortifications of Harwich and Dover. Seaham Harbour, an important British coal port, was attacked by a German submarine. The German admiralty states that two submarines dropped bombs upon the British army camps at Calais.

When Jules Verne, the French novelist, wrote his great dramatized story: "In eighty days around the world," he thought to have exhausted the wonders of travel but his keen flight of imagination, carrying him to the stars and anticipating the Zeppelins, did not venture into the darkness of the deep, supposed to be beyond human travel. But science has made fancy pale before reality.

In the summer of 1906 the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland made the record trip across the ocean in five days and fourteen hours. Another Deutschland has just made an even more wonderful record. It traveled 4,000 miles in and under the water and brought us highly prized things from Germany, proving that the tight British starvation blockade is in fact no blockade at all.

The commerce submarine is not armed, carries no guns or torpedoes, is not an imperial ship but belongs to private Bremen shippers, whose fathers started the first mail steamer from Europe across the ocean in the fourteenth century. They belonged to the class of hyphenated Germans and Baltimore who have done much to develop the foreign trade of the United States.

Of course the British are vexed. They contend that the Deutschland is a military naval craft because it is a submarine. So is the whale and the herring. Until the question is settled we have to drop it as beyond our jurisdiction as a war and not a commerce reviewer. For the present we are satisfied to know that Deutschland is yet on the map and are glad to get the dyes again for the lasting colors in our own dear red, white and blue.

It is said that the Deutschland is only the first one in a line of submarine merchantmen from Bremen, others will follow, and that a company is being organized in Hamburg for a regular Transatlantic Zeppelin service. Qui vivra verra!

WANTED ON CHARGE OF STEALING BRASS

Detectives J. R. Hardman and Murray Taylor, Norfolk and Western railroad, with headquarters at Columbus, arrived in the city Friday to make arrangements with Prosecuting Attorney Joseph T. Mickelthwait and Sheriff E. W. Smith for the extradition of two prisoners from the Kentucky state penitentiary, Frankfort, to this city, to stand trial on a charge of stealing brass.

Detective Hardman stated Friday that the two men, giving the names Leonard Nichols and Homer Snyder, were arrested July 5 at Mayesville, Ky., and taken to Morehead, Ky., to be tried on charges of breaking jail and indictments charging them with stealing brass from the Chesapeake and Ohio railway.

On July 1, 1915, the officers allege that the two men stole 980 pounds of brass from the Norfolk and Western railway. The prisoners will complete their sentence at the Kentucky institution July 10, this year, and it is the intention of the detectives to have the governor pass upon the papers secured here Friday and re-arrest the men and bring them to Scioto county to stand trial.

Golf Alibi Is Spiked

Cleveland, July 15.—Stories that playing golf cut seriously into one's batting average are refuted in part by the performance of Tris Speaker, who has led the batters of the American league most of the season though he is a regular golfer.

Fashion Note.
"What an awful sight that woman is!" "Yes, my dear, but isn't she stylish?"—Detroit Free Press.

TRIS SPEAKER LEADS IN THE AMERICAN

Tris Speaker has regained the lead in the American league, running his average up to .387 while Joe Jackson fell down during the week from .381 to .353. Cobb gained 12 points and presses Detroit's lead with .355. The speedy Jackson has 36 stolen bases, which indicates he will have to hurry on the lines the remaining half of the season to attain his ambition for 100 thefts. Speaker also regained first place as a slinger with 53 total bases and leads in runs scored with 63. Eddie Collins heads the sacrifice hitters with 29 and Baker in home runs with eight. Detroit leads in team hitting with .256. The ten leading batters in the American league are:

Speaker, Cleveland .387; Jackson, Chicago .353; Cobb, Detroit .353; Burns, Detroit .353; Shotton, St. Louis .353; Siler, St. Louis .292; Strunk, Philadelphia .287; Nunnemaker, New York .286; Miller, St. Louis .285.

Dope Funny Old Thing

Batting averages are queer institutions. Benny Kauff batted .344 in the Fed. circuit last year and Les Magee hit .305. Kauff is now down around .270 with Magee around .221. Yet it is Chase, who batted only .250 with the Feds. is up over .300 in the National. And there you are.

Honus Wagner On Heels Of Best National Hitter

Chicago, July 15.—John (Honus) Wagner ran his average up eight points to .333 and took third place among the batters of the National league this week, according to averages printed here today which include the records of last Wednesday's games.

Dave Robertson leads, however, though Jake Daubert has cut down the difference and is hitting .336 to Robertson's .344. Max Carey of Pittsburgh is ahead in stolen bases with 27; Max Flack of Chicago in sacrifice hits with 37; Williams of Chicago in home runs with ten and in total bases with 124, and Burns, New York, in runs scored with 55. Brooklyn leads in club batting with .254. The National's 300 batters among those who have played in half or more of the games are:

Robertson, New York .344; Daubert, Brooklyn .336; Wagner, Pittsburgh .333; Hinchman, Pittsburgh .323; Chase, Cincinnati .323; Long, St. Louis .217; Zimmerman, Chicago .311; Hornsby, St. Louis .310; Wheat, Brooklyn .304; Schulte, Chicago .302.

M'GRAW ARRESTED

Cincinnati, July 15.—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National league team, was arrested last night on a warrant sworn out by John T. Reed, local fan, charging him with disorderly conduct. McGraw gave bond for his appearance in the municipal court and left with his team for St. Louis.

Trouble started after the game when remarks by several spectators were addressed to the New York team while they were in their dressing rooms. McGraw resented the remarks. There were no blows struck, but some ugly language was used, according to the police.

After McGraw's arrest, Arthur Fletcher, shortstop for the New York team, swore to a warrant causing Reed's arrest.

Poetry and Pleasure.
The poet writes under one restriction only—namely, the necessity of giving immediate pleasure. Nor let this necessity of producing immediate pleasure be considered as a degradation of the poet's art. It is far otherwise. It is an acknowledgment of the beauty of the universe, an acknowledgment of the more sincere because not formal, but indirect. It is a task light and easy to him who looks at the world in the spirit of love. Further, it is a homage paid to the native and noble dignity of man, to the grand elementary principle of pleasure, by which he feels and lives and moves.—William Wordsworth.

State Political Letters

(DEMOCRATIC)

By Charles E. Morris, Democratic Press Bureau.

Columbus, July 15.—The Court of Appeals of the Fifth Appellate District has issued a decision completely reversing another ruling of Attorney General Turner. The decision allows the election officials of the state pay for conducting the primary elections last spring. Turner has held otherwise.

Court reports now in press show that Attorney General Turner has been reversed more frequently than he has been upheld. His record is especially weak as compared with that of his predecessor, Timothy S. Hogan, who was sustained in supreme court in all but one case taken there.

Governor Frank B. Willis extended practically every cent of his emergency fund for his first fiscal year, the allowance being $300,000. He spent $196,194.82. Serious inroads have already been made on the second appropriation of $200,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

During the first year of the administration of Governor Cox the expenditures by the emergency fund were $46,646.97. During the second year the emergency expenditures were $71,216.08. Cox's total emergency expenditures for two years was $117,863.05. For his entire term he had only $200,000. He left a balance of $71,216.08 in the emergency fund.

Willis spent all his fund but the chicken feed. More would have been spent if it could have been obtained. As matters stand the state fair loss of $50,000 is yet to be made up.

Carping critics of Governor Willis should give him credit for the economy he claims. He has spent only three or four million dollars more than Cox did, and has exceeded his income for the year by a sum that only runs to even figures. This is the first time in years state expenses exceeded the state income. Willis has been economical, however, for the state now has a surplus of seven million dollars, which, according to Willis, himself, there was a huge deficit when he started.

Efficiency of the highest order is shown by the Willis administration in postponing the building of the new state office building, while the building commission expense continues, and the unnecessary overflow of offices is still occupied by the unnecessary office holders.

At the last meeting of the emergency board the first hole was made in the new fund when there was made a $15,000 allowance to pay the colored battalions Willis called out to guard the mobilization camp that was filled with two brigades of soldiers. Ghosts! Boo!

Candidate Harry M. Daugherty, who seeks the Republican senatorial nomination, has been making peculiar statements about the use of money to corrupt elections. It would seem to the observer that he was pointing an accusing finger at some opponent. Dick is a millionaire and Herriek is a multi-millionaire. Now which can Harry mean?

Republican candidates are sadly at a loss these days about how to conduct themselves. Most of them have decided that wisdom is the better part of valor and are saying as little as possible.

Selection of James R. Garfield as the Ohio member of the Hughes executive committee is taken to mean that the Hughes managers look upon the Willis Republicans as hopelessly in bad, and that they will draw away from state managers in their effort to win the Ohio electoral vote. Garfield said some mighty mean things about Willis in 1914 and he has not yet or ever asked forgiveness.

In most Republican quarters there is fear that the strength of President Wilson is becoming so great that general apathy will block all efforts of opposition to him.

The day after supreme court rapped Charlie Hildebrandt's knuckles for reaching across the board to shove that $12,000 to Senator Wickline in the auto tag deal, it became known that he had spent all his fiscal year excess appropriation for stamps. $4500 worth, that's all. Come handy in a campaign for a man who has so much to explain as Hildy has!

The Democrats have three good lawyers as candidates for attorney general. The Republicans haven't even got one.

Hot weather is doing wonders for the corn crop. As election time approaches Willis seems to be making overtures to the labor vote by offering jobs to labor leaders.

In a public statement, James Boyle, member of the State Tax Commission, appointed by Governor Willis, makes a severe arraignment of the bankers and building and loan men of Ohio. The charges he makes are important if true.

Mr. Doyle says that tax dodgers are protected under existing laws, and that the bankers and building and loan men have lobbied state legislature for this purpose. To the protection given bank depositors this tax commissioner blames the falling in the personal duplicate of the present year.

It is, of course, to be considered that Commissioner Boyle is a single tax advocate, and that as an advocate of the present administration he must find excuse for the Willis "decentralizer" under which he is operating.

The Ohio Federation of Labor, through its executive committee, has authorized the submission of a constitutional amendment to forever prohibit the operation of employer's liability companies in the state, and to secure to the state a non-competitive as well as a compulsory workmen's compensation law. Former Attorney General Timothy S. Hogan has been retained to draft the amendment and it is hoped to have petitions in circulation within ten days. Former Governor James M. Cox has pledged his support to the movement.

It has been generally recognized that the intent of the framers of the present law had in mind the elimination of competition in workmen's compensation, because of wrongs perpetrated in the past by private companies engaged in the employer's liability business. Legal question has been raised. Now the constitutional inhibition is sought which will remove the question from further quibbling.

Students of insurance have agreed that compensation is of a social nature and can be handled properly only by the state. It differs from fire, life and straight accident insurance, which is of a property relation and subject rightfully only to individual contract. For this reason it has developed that the employer's liability insurance companies have been having a hard time in having the fire, life and accident companies borrow trouble by coming to the defense of those who brought their trouble on themselves.

Rudy W. Mack must have gotten under the good young governor's hide in his expose of the Cincinnati deal. The other day Governor Willis bitterly assailed Lawrence P. Lake, Mack's manager, on the streets of Columbus, and called him a traitor to Adm. where he graduated under Willis as professor. Lake responded that Willis was a traitor not only to his party but to the state as well. "Sio omi!"

(REPUBLICAN)
(By the Ohio Republican Editorial Association, By Claude O. Waltermire).

Columbus, O., July 15.—The compensation department of the Industrial Commission furnishes some interesting figures which show the growing strength of Workmen's Compensation under the present state administration. The increase in premium receipts for the first six months of 1916 as compared with 1915 is $953,642.07. The balance, June 30, of this year, was $3,798,079.14, making an increase in the balance for the year of $1,100,624.32.

The report of Auditor Putnam submitted to the commission this week shows that in not a single instance was the disbursement of claims delayed more than five days after the disbursement had been ordered by the commission. The net addition to pay rolls during the month of June this year amounts to $1,959,529.60. These figures are doubly significant to those interested in Workmen's Compensation in face of the fact that former Governor James M. Cox is charging, falsely, that the present administration is attempting to cripple the law.

Arrangements are being made by special committees for the big Republican reunion in Columbus sometime between the 8th and 21st of August. Charles Evans Hughes, Republican candidate for president; Charles Warren Fairbanks, Republican candidate for vice president; John Hays Hammond, head of the National League of Republican Clubs; United States Senator Warren G. Harding; Governor Frank B. Willis and other candidates on the state ticket chosen at the August primaries, will be the speakers. It is to be the biggest Republican gathering ever held in Ohio. It is possible that Colonel Roosevelt will also be one of the speakers.

The Department of Public Printing, under the present state administration, shows a balance in the treasury, June 30, of $39,356.87, the best showing the department has ever made in its history; in as much as in the expenditures of the office, $17,000, was for new machinery, which has made the state hindery one of the most complete in the United States. In addition to this, the hindery has been completely unionized under the present administration.

About as near as the Democratic press bureaus have come to telling the truth about the present state administration is that they have omitted to tell any of the truth.

Without much noise about it, but by keeping constantly on the job and doing the work of the department as it should be done, the attorney general's office under General Turner has saved the taxpayers of Ohio $85,000 this year over the last year of the previous administration, and with a large increase in the work besides.

Let's see, wasn't it under the Cox administration that the amendments to the Workmen's Compensation law which caused the trouble, were passed? Look it up, Mr. Vater.

Every labor law on the statute books is being enforced by the present state administration.

When will the Republican newspapers of Ohio learn that the Ohio State Journal is not a Republican paper; that it is supporting Woodrow Wilson for president and James M. Cox for governor?

Covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1916, figures given out by Bert B. Buckley, state fire marshal, in advance of the annual report for such fiscal year, show that the number of fires investigated was 512; number of arrests made by the department 101; number of convictions 80; which makes the year one of the high water marks in the history of the department. In the division of building inspections, there were made 10,541 inspections as against 9600 for the calendar year of 1915.

The Columbus Daily Monitor is here. It arrived last Monday and took its place at the head of the list in the capital.

"Go to it," reads a card, gotten out in the capital this week. Where? Why, the Ohio State Fair. It's going to be a dandy.

Believe Lad Who Leaped From Train Is Headed For His Home

Deputy Sheriff Rome Arthur returned late Friday night from Lancaster, where he took Cecil Lewis, a local youth, to the reformatory to start an indeterminate term on a charge of petty larceny.

Deputy Sheriff Rome Arthur Saturday was still angry about the escape of Harvey Wingo, another young man whom he had in custody. In discussing the incident Saturday, he said that the passenger train had reached Dorney, the cooling station near Circleville. "I couldn't get a seat either in front or behind the two boys and was compelled to sit opposite them. They had the window open just about eight inches and I did not allow them to get it higher, for I feared that they would try to jump through."

"Well a freight train pulled up and left about the time we arrived there, and before I knew it, Wingo shot out through the window and made his escape through the fields. I could not leave Lewis, for he would escape while I was looking for Wingo, so I went to Circleville and notified Sheriff Sheets. He went to the cooling station and scoured the fields, but did not find him."

When seen Saturday, Judge Thomas C. Beatty stated that he understood that the Wingo boy had made his way back to his home in South Portsmouth.

Charleston, S. C., July 15.—At least one marine was drowned and five or six others who were aboard the large naval collier Hector, which grounded while trying to reach Charleston, are missing, according to reports to the consumers coal company, owners of the tug Vigilant, which went to the Hector's assistance. The chief engineer's skull was fractured and two others of the crew were badly injured, according to the report.

Charleston, S. C., July 15.—One hundred and two marines and sailors from the Hector were landed here this morning by the tender Cypress. Captain Newell and sixteen men remain aboard the Hector, which is lying off Charleston light ship broken in two. Four injured marines were sent to a local hospital.

Charleston, S. C., July 15.—All the 142 who abandoned the large naval collier Hector when she grounded last night, are safe aboard the tug Wilmington and the lighthouse tender Cypress. Captain Bryan of the Charleston navy yard, announced early today.

Charleston, S. C., July 15.—The station, carrying sixty marines to Hector, commanded by Captain Santo Domingo, when she was partially disabled by Friday's Port Royal, S. C., naval training trying to make Charleston harbor conveyed by the steamer Alamo. High seas had prevented the Alamo from getting close enough to take off the men, who took to their boats. In addition to her commander and the marines the Hector, which displaced 11,200 tons, carried 11 officers and a crew of 70 men.

Captain Bryan's announcement regarding the Hector follows: "Additional information Hector: All hands safe and aboard lighthouse tender Cypress and tug Wilmington, heading for Charleston. Hector abandoned seven miles northeast Cape Roman, gas buoy, breaking in two."

The Cypress and Wilmington had been sent last night to aid the collier.

MAY LENGTHEN SESSION

Washington, July 15.—Senate Democrats will caucus tonight to decide whether the legislative program drawn up recently shall be extended at the cost of lengthening the present session of congress beyond Sept. 1. Many Democrats are insistent that special measures be added to the program, but leaders realize that this would mean the session would last into fall.

Democrats and Republicans are still apart on what measures are to be disposed of.

ROYAL FOREST BURNING
Paris, July 15.—The fire which destroyed the summer residence of King Constantine of Greece situated at Tatoi on the outskirts of Athens, is still raging in the forest in which the royal chateau stood. A Hivas despatch from Athens says it is feared the flames will reach the city.

Among those who lost their lives in the fire were Colonel De La Porta of the engineers, M. Chrysospathis, the head of the Royal secret service and twenty soldiers. Fifty soldiers were injured in rescue work.

"Home of Character" No. 145

A design bespeaking quiet home comfort and one containing dignity and repose. The lower story is covered with wide siding and the gables and roof are covered with shingles. The large columns supporting the porch roof contribute largely to the beauty of the general scheme, as also the ornamental chimney.

The basement is under the entire house and is built of brick, with shale brick or other appropriate brick used for facing above grade. The living room is entered in the center and occupies the entire front of the house, the dining room and kitchen in the rear. In the dining room is provided an alcove to contain a buffet. The second floor is reached by combination stairs from living room and kitchen, and has four good bedrooms, each with large closets, a linen closet and well appointed bathroom. The attic is finished in one large room.

The design, 26x28 feet, can be built for from $1000 to $3500. Thirty-three hundred dollars should build it, with a good grade of material and complete equipment, in most localities.

Any Times reader who desires further information concerning No. 145 should address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Times." There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.

The Tallow Dip Goes Out!

A Boston firm, which operated the largest tallow dip factory in the country, which, of a fact, was about the sole survivor in this once general and flourishing industry, announced, last week, that it would discontinue the making of the candles. Thus another institution of the past makes surrender to progress. A generation ago not only every well regulated, but most every family of every kind, kept a stock of tallow candles on hand, according to their prudence and means. Now most families, especially those in town, have little knowledge of this mode of lighting and less use for it. That is rather strange for the tallow dip still remains with us as the measure of light. For we still speak and will so continue for many years, of a given brilliancy as so many candle power, 16-candle lamp, 40-candle, 60-candle, 80-candle, 1200-candle and 2000-candle are terms of hourly use, in speaking of electric illumination. And could things thus so intimately connected be so far apart. The tallow dip was a necessity, but it was a nuisance. Danger and discomfort were its accompaniments and qualities. Recalls the hunting for a match, a place to strike it, the melted tallow running down onto fingers and scorching them, the upsetting of the pesky thing when it was set down without its "stick," which by-the-way wasn't a stick at all, but a hollow tube with a base in which the candle was stuck, that is when the family had enough "sticks," but a family was never known to have enough for every candle in use. Well, may be there was one family that had enough, but memory recalls no instance where an extra candle and a stick could be found in speaking distance of each other. Still, we wouldn't speak altogether disparagingly of the tallow dip; it had its uses and it was mighty handy at times. It is not at all the same with the electric candle. It is absolutely the most wonderful of all inventions because it is a prime necessity and at the same time the best of all comforts and the finest of luxuries. You often here people say they would like to have a taste of luxury—they can get it almost for nothing in the electric current. There isn't a particle of noise, dirt, disorder, confusion or annoyance about it, scarce so much an effort required to reach its enjoyment. Merely pressing a button brings a veritable flood of light, the cooling breezes to blowing, or the water steaming on the stove—things of more life and daily importance to you than that its moves the cars along the streets and across country, whirls the big wheels in industries, and talks clear around the earth and chatters through invisible space. It is the pleasant thing, the comfortable thing, the important thing, the useful thing, the necessary thing, the one luxurious thing you can demand in your home and know you are doing the most economical thing. Whether you own your home or rent it, you ought to see it has electric service.

We will be glad to talk to you anytime about how little it costs and what are its manifold advantages.

Scioto Claims Another Victim, Boy Drowns Near Clifford

Miles Welton, Aged 13, Attempts To Wade Stream; Searchers Look For Body, Third Drowning In Week

Within less than a week the Scioto and Ohio rivers have reaped a total of three lives, three youths being the victims. Playing in the treacherous water of the Scioto and being unable to swim, cost the life of Miles Welton, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Welton, of Clifford, above Lucasville, Friday afternoon about four o'clock.

The first victim of the season was John Humphrey, aged 13, who met death in the Ohio river last Saturday evening.

The second victim was John E. Moore, 12, who drowned in the Scioto Tuesday during the noon hour.

The bodies of the first two victims were recovered but up to ten o'clock Saturday the body of young Welton had not been brought to the surface. Welton is the oldest of the three to drown this season.

Welton, Hobart and Louis McCallister, sons of Frank McCallister, of Clifford, spent the most of Friday afternoon at the river. They had been in wading and stated his brother, to shore. By this time Welton had gone down for the third time and nothing could be seen of his body. The McCallister boys ran home spreading the news of the fatal accident which had befallen their comrade.

A searching party was soon formed headed by A. F. Miller. In the party were men from the W. N. Frederick camp near Clifford. The searching party used spike poles and drags of all kinds but were unsuccessful in locating the body. They worked hard until ten o'clock Friday night and then gave up the search until this morning when it was resumed.

Dynamite was used without any effect.

The drowned boy was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Welton. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, John and Charles, and two sisters, Edith and Dora. The father is working on a steam shovel in Crum, W. Va. He was notified by telegram shortly after the drowning and he arrived home on No. 3 Saturday morning and assisted in the search.

The young McCallister boy broke the sad news to the mother who collapsed soon after hearing the boy's story. She fainted several times Friday evening, and Dr. Daniel Webster of Lucasville had to be called. The Weltons live on a small hillside farm above the water tank, and Mrs. Welton has been in charge of a small general store in the absence of her husband.

Painful Injury

Enjoys First Fish Of Season

Tobe Moler, veteran hunter and fisherman, was agreeably surprised to receive a visit from his friend, George Catlin, of Georgetown, O., Friday. "Tobe" did his first fishing in months Saturday, he having been afflicted with rheumatism for nearly a year. Several months ago he fell and broke his hip.

Young Widow Takes Poison; Life Saved By Physicians

While whispered about the neighborhood that interference with her love affair with a mere youth prompted the rash act, members of the family themselves say it was her own ungovernable temper that led Mrs. Lulu Pyles, aged 20 years, a widow of No. 620 Tenth street, to make an attempt to end her life late Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Pyles drained a bottle containing a solution of chloroform and alcohol, swallowing from two to three ounces of the mixture. It was at first feared she had taken carbolic acid. A hurry call was sent in to police headquarters for City Physician W. D. Schafer but someone an instant later succeeded in locating Dr. James W. Fitch who by his prompt use of a stomach pump soon had the young woman out of danger.

Mrs. Pyles and her little nephew, Louis Hagerman, a ten-year-old son of Mrs. Louis Hagerman, had engaged in a "friendly battle" by throwing water at each other. It finally became so intense that the former's sister, Miss Nellie Levenier, ordered her to "cut it out."

Thoroughly enraged Mrs. Pyles rushed into the house, through the kitchen into the sitting room and seizing the bottle containing the poisonous mixture from a mantel-piece placed it to her lips before the others could interfere. She immediately repaired to a bedroom and according to reports repeatedly called for Walter Lauter, saying she wanted to see him before she passed away.

When a Times man reached the scene Lauter was standing at the alley gate of the lot wildly motioning to the excited women not to talk to the reporter.

Dr. Fitch said the young woman had swallowed a sufficient quantity of the solution to kill her but that he had succeeded in emptying her stomach in time to save her life.

Mrs. Pyles is a daughter of Paul Levenier, a mill hand at the H. Leet Lumber Co.'s plant. Her husband, Philip Pyles, from whom she had separated, died four years ago. She has one child, Philip Louis Pyles, aged three years. She helps support herself and child by doing housework about town.

Mr. Levenier when asked regarding reports of his daughter's alleged love affair with young Lauter, said he did not believe it had anything to do with her attempt to take her own life.

Burial Expenses Of Child Borne By Burchett, Denies He's Father

Although still contending that he was not the father of the child, Frank Burchett, an apprentice at the Reliable Engine Company's plant, Friday evening accepted the advice of Probate Judge T. C. Beatty and agreed to pay all of the expenses for burying the dead body of the two-month-old baby daughter of his 17-year-old wife, Mrs. Midge Ryland-Burchett, with whom he has not lived a day since their marriage, six or seven months ago.

The child had died Thursday morning of summer complaint, and the corpse lay neglected at the home of the young mother's father, A. J. Ryland, a city employee, of No. 1317 Union street, until the middle of Friday afternoon, city and county officials being unable to agree as to who should assume the responsibility.

Director E. K. S. Chikensbeard, of the public safety department, expected the county authorities to provide burial for the dead child, but it was not until after he had satisfied himself that under the law he could act, did Supt. William Weidner, of the county infirmary, direct County Undertaker John Dice attention had been drawn to the case by Clerk Thomas M. Gynn, of to bury the child.

Police Chief Henry Clark, whose the public safety department, promptly decided that the matter of expense was an after consideration and that the thing to do was to act quickly in providing burial. He accordingly notified Judge Beatty.

While Burchett had never lived with the young girl he was obliged to marry, he has regularly paid her $3 per week to support her, missing only one or two payments recently, he claims, because he was learning a trade and not making much money.

Awning Blaze At Chabot Grocery

Fire of unknown origin destroyed part of the awning at the Alva Chabot grocery, Third and Waller streets, Friday evening. The alarm was turned in at 9:29, two boxes being pulled but only one, box 62, registered the alarm. Henderson Hutchison, who lives near the store, discovered the fire and telephoned in an alarm.

The awning was up against the building when the fire started. A cigar stub was thrown into the awning or it was touched with a match is the opinion of Mr. Chabot. The east plate glass window was cracked by the heat of the fire. Part of the frame work at the top of the window was also burned. The Seventh street and East End companies answered the alarm and extinguished the fire with chemicals.

DO WE NEED THEM?

(From Huntington Herald-Dispatch)

Although the season is not far advanced, Huntington has already been visited by three amusement enterprises known to fame as the street carnival. The quality of entertainment furnished by these candidates for public favor, has, for the most part, been of questionable merit. There may have been some really good features attached to some of them, but in most cases the attractions have been indifferent and the whole attendant situation demoralizing.

It is true that there are to be found under this head, at rare intervals, shows which possess in parts at least, genuine merit. But such intervals are rare, indeed, and even the best of such organizations carry features which add nothing to the moral status of the community. It is a fact that the status of these attractions has fallen so low that not infrequently they constitute nothing better than a public assignation—a place for ribald revelry and challenge, a spectacle which seems to bring the slums to life and into congregation, and to place a staggering estimate upon the numerical strength of the slum population. The wayward, the unchaperoned, the susceptible of all ages, races and sexes assemble on the carnival grounds and are fed upon all manner of unwholesome association and suggestion.

It is a serious matter whether these shows should not be barred from Huntington altogether. Certain it is that the majority of them have no claim upon the public and are nothing more or less than nuisances which are permitted to prey upon an element of the community population which, if it needs anything in the way of entertainment, needs something much more wholesome than the average carnival offers.

Huntington is not so lean in the amusements provided that we must have every week or two shows of such a character that very few of the respectable element will have anything to do with them and which are in their very nature, capable of appealing only to the unrefined waywardly inclined.

The authorities should, and we believe they will, hereafter, scrutinize very carefully the credentials of the next carnival company that knocks for admittance. And unless the owners can furnish good evidence, that the attractions are cleaner from the standpoint of morals and more worthy from the standpoint of merits, they should be told to pass on.

But it is not so much the demoralizing influence of the average carnival show as pertains to the show itself, as it is that these shows seem to attract the lower elements, and to be the signal for debauchery and gross misconduct, demoralizing in its effect upon the hundreds of girls and boys whom an insufficient system of chaperonage or none at all permits to flock to the carnival grounds that makes them so objectionable.

Do we need the carnival? We do not. We can well afford to try to get through the remainder of the season without another.

WHAT A CAR CAN DO

Out east an automobile of a standard make was given an endurance test that really seems worth while. Its hood was sealed and it was started on a two mile track and then run out in town and the country about. For two full weeks, night and day, it was kept at this without stopping, except for change of driver and renewal of oil and gasoline. At the end of that time it was given an inspection. None of the parts were particularly worn, nor weakened, and from all appearances it could have doubled the distance it traveled in the two weeks, over four thousand miles, without serious wear or injury.

That's fine, very fine. The wonder is why somebody doesn't make more than one car like that.

Strange how some people escape one misfortune only to fall into another. The man who was just acquitted of attempt to blow up the Welland canal is to be known as Madam Gudska's husband. And a name like that at that.

A newspaper man, who a thousand times has mocked a woman for getting off a street car backwards, tried it himself the other day. No damage was done the paving, but, oh, my, his head, even to this date.

From 'way down in Arkansas comes the Little Rock Gazette offering this thought for the day—it is remarkable how few men who follow guitar playing for a living, get rich.

Our reading of the daily news convinces us that the deadly crossing is actively engaged in doing business at the old stand. It would soon be bankrupt of toll however, if people would only heed the injunction: "Stop, Read, Listen."

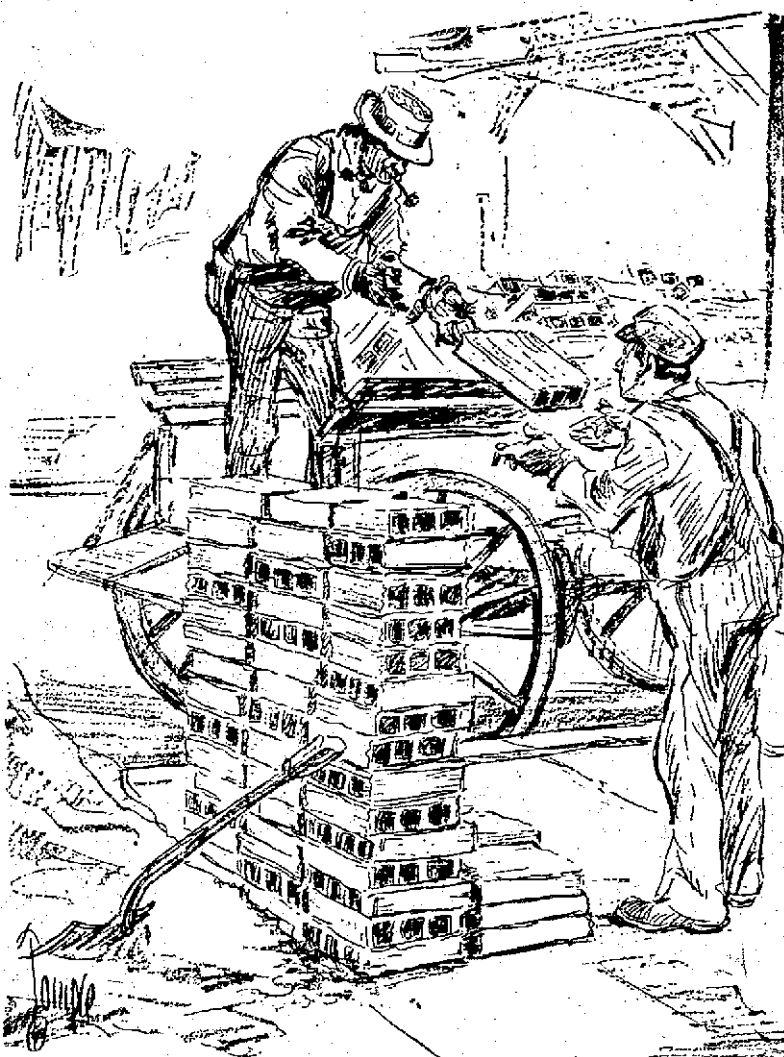

To the befogged vision of the Memphis Commercial-Appal, Uncle Sam must have been suffering from "low visibility" when he recognized Carranza as a de facto.

Anent the report that the Mexicans are preparing to shell General Pershing's motor truck trail, the Louisville-Journal exclaims: "They have shed our blood. Now, if they spill our gasoline, nothing shall hold us back!"

As the Chicago Post sizes it up our boys down on the border have nothing to fear, except pulque, mesquite, prickly pears and Mexicans, just about the order named, we opine.

There may be nothing in a name, but all the same Mrs. Joy, of Springfield, Mass., has twenty-six nephews fighting in Europe, like Irishmen will fight, and not a single one of them has, so far, received so much as a scratch.

Sketches from Life . . . By Temple

Team Work

A GOOD WORD FOR HER

A writer, who is familiar with all the great ones that cluster about Wall Street, says that Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world, at her death, was not mean, but gentle and kindly; she was not parsimonious, but frugal and thrifty. She heaped up by interest and wide investment a fortune of about six millions, left her by her husband, little better than fifty years ago, until its present dimensions may be as great as two hundred millions, yet she oppressed no one, neither did she so manipulate the stock and money markets so as to bring loss and ruin to others and vast gains to herself, a thing the vast cash at her command would have enabled her easily to do. All her operations were legitimate and her financial transactions were ever straight and honorable. Altogether hers is a rare phenomenon and it shows how ill and wrongly the world judges those upon whom fortune showers its abundance.

A colored trooper complain that after making him prisoner at the Carrizal affair, Mexicans robbed him of $400 in cash. The bones must have been rolling his way strong the night before.

What's the matter? There seems to be no more Colonel timber in the country. Only the Doughty One himself has offered to organize a regiment.

We'll have to give the weather clerk credit for trying, even if he does make a poor stagger in trying to convert a shower into a rain.

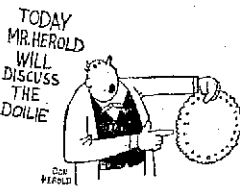

By-the-way, we will have to hand the bouquet to the present crop of governors. Notwithstanding this Mexican flurry and the torrid weather they have so far "kept their shirts on" most decently.

Over at Springfield there is a street car motorman recently come into a one-eighth share of an estate of not less than half a million dollars, who keeps steadily on his job, saying there will be time enough to consider change of plans when his ship actually comes in. Wise guy, he appreciates the truth of the maxim, that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush and he isn't going to let go of a safe thing until he sees what's left when the lawyers get through with the estate.

The Star, of Portsmouth, Virginia, came near perpetrating a record, the other day, when it emitted a sentence of 234 words with no heavier break than a dash or a comma. It certainly established a record when it made that sentence all there was of one editorial. And what do you think that sentence was about? Simply, that if the Star had devoted itself to carping and fault-finding over the course and actions of the president the administration would not, in human nature, be inclined to look with favor upon the proposed extensions of the Portsmouth naval yards.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

Whoever would think about dollies except women? This is not an accusation, nor is it our desire to bowl anybody out about dollies. As for dollies, we are absolutely unbiased about 'em—up to this point. We may get inflamed before we have gone far, but up to this time we are cool. However, dollies are pretty feminine—we must say that. Will there still be dollies when suffrage becomes universal? Somehow it is hard to think of suffrage and dollies in the same breath. Will suffrage destroy the dolly? Every home that is a home has eight or ninety dollies here and there, dollies under the molasses pitcher, dollies under the ice water, dollies, dollies everywhere, and a lot of dollies absolutely unjustified from any practical standpoint. In fact, it is these latter dollies that we love best of all. The more useless a dolly, the more we love it.

Ladies and gentlemen, here is the whole point to any real objection that anybody may have to suffrage. We don't want it to destroy the dolly instinct in women. Dollies and lingerie—what is life without them? What would home be if it were a place of four cement walls, a cook-stove and a khaki tablecloth? No, let us preserve the dolly and other feminine follies.

Somewhere in the audience says that dollies have been out of style ten years. Well, maybe they have. We haven't noticed.

Billy Finds The Strawberry Patch

"I DON'T EXACTLY know what the sons for staying away—not he! He matter to the to-day," said Billy, flew away without a word and Robin, fretfully, "but I don't feel made straight for the neighbor's hungry for worms."

"How Mrs. Billy did laugh! Just as though that was to be. Strawberries! Rows and rows and wondered at," cried she, as soon as she could speak. "If you had seen yourself go after those great, big worms you dug out of the neighbor's garden yesterday, you wouldn't have thought you could eat a worm for a week. Indeed you wouldn't have, Billy! For my part, I'm only too thankful you are not sick!"

"The very idea," said Billy tartly, for above all things he hated to be laughed at. "You and Mrs. Chirpy will never get through talking about the way I stood on my head. I guess you would have done exactly the same thing if you had been there. I know Mrs. Chirpy would have, too, if she liked worms as well as I do—I mean as well as I usually do," added Billy as he remembered his grievance.

"I'll tell you what you might do, Billy," said Mrs. Billy, thoughtfully, for she always liked to help Billy out if she could. "You might try once to the next block. I think there must be something good in that third garden."

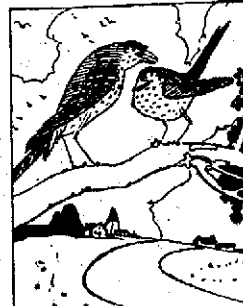

"So?" asked Billy, and he perked up his tail and looked interested. "Why?"

"Because I've noticed that all morning birds have been going over there and I'm sure they wouldn't unless there was good reason."

"Then why didn't you go yourself?" asked Billy suspiciously.

"Because I had all I could eat right here at home. This is a very good garden here, Billy, and you know it. And anyway, I'm not as brave about investigating as you are."

That settled it. Billy would not have stayed away from that garden meal and then flew off to his home, if she had told him a hundred re-

as a robin might dream of eating but never expect to find it. "That's surely one time when Mrs. Billy knew what she was talking about!" exclaimed Billy in delight, and then he swooped down and began eating. And such eating! He took a taste of one berry, a nibble of another and a whole side from a third big red berry.

And he was not the only bird there—dear me, no! There were a lot of blackbirds and some robins, but there were so many berries that each bird could have plenty, so there were no quarrels!

Billy never thought of the neighbor whose garden he was robbing, why should he? He had a fine, big have stayed away from that garden meal and then flew off to his home, if she had told him a hundred re-

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY.

O-O-MEINTYRE.

New York, July 15—There seems to be no limit to what the New York hotels are doing in the way of trying to outdo each other. One hotel starts with a this room and in a few weeks a rival has a this-or room, and so it goes. Of course the ultimate consumer pays the freight in the end.

The other night a little party of four, which included the writer, sat down in Ardenonville at the Knickerbocker. It is a beautiful gymnasium—but it wasn't worth $1 just for the privilege of sitting in the chair, but that was what it cost—$1 each for the courier, they call it, and whatever is ordered is extra.

During the past week the Vanderbilt has opened what they call the "Far East Gardens," which is sumptuously done. Bamboo and damask are the minor decorations. Samsa, or rather many Chinese and Japanese prints and paintings by the genius Schiele also add to the general scheme.

The roof of the Majestic, done over like an ocean liner, is another step that required certain daring. The whole cafe and dancing floors are out in the open air and when it rains the roof is closed. The management gambled on the weather—if it proves to be a rainy season they will lose a fortune, but if it is fair weather—it will be something else again.

His Excellency of the Brilliants attended the opening of the Ritz Roof the other night. He was offered a souvenir by a Mexican waiter. "I'll take it if you'll wear this," and he dug a tiny American flag from his pockets. The waiter wore the flag. His Excellency is Diamond Jim Brady.

The vanguard of happy parties can be seen at the railroad stations for the open season for "My Wife's Gone to the Country," has started. All the larger roads have installed tear mops for the tired business man's crocodile work and the general stores of rural centers have installed the great mass of "Wish

You Were Here" postals for the sunstroke season.

At the wilder locations in and about New York the head waiters will begin to look for the sheepish tribe with the champagne colored socks and the shifty eyes and the rail systems entering to the nearby commuters will start the special Sunday troop trains with dog kennel ransome trimmings and canary bird cage snidle embroidery.

The shirt makers are working overtime on the big stripe goods which devote that aubusland has been left to his own devices and is afraid of no man, woman or child at present in the city. One of the most certain symptoms of an emancipated party is the manner in which he goes wild up around his neck with cravats, shirt and waist trimmings.

Tired wives with a glimmer of doubt in their wet eyes can be seen tending father for the last banknote on his person and fond husbands can be seen starting for home with a seriousness that is simply screamingly amusing.

A Word of Praise

How much a little word of praise will keep a fellow going! How much a little compliment will keep the sunlight flowing! A word of cheer will do it, too. So fellow man and woman, Let's try today along the way To be a little human!

How much a comforting remark will do to keep one steady! How sweet the heart responds with song and always up and ready. A word of praise, a word of cheer, They have a mighty power To lift the spirit out of gloom The same as any flower!

How much a man can do when he is told he's doing finely! How much it makes the world a world he learns to love divinely! The highest and the lowest like The tender word and human; And as it is with men it is The same way with a woman! —Selected.

"Yes, he is! Why, you and papa have known me—known me all my life and never noticed it!"

"Never noticed what, dear?" "Why, Harry kept looking into my eyes last evening, and every time he looked into them he whispered to me that each one was just a little bluer than the other!"—Judge.

An old gentleman, now deceased, never seemed to be satisfied unless he had several cases pending in court. He left surviving him a son who seems to have followed in his footsteps and has continued to keep up his father's record of proceedings in court.

This story is told of the father: The old gent had just won a case in the justice court, when the loser, in a very combative frame of mind, exclaimed: "I'll law you to the circuit court!"

Old Gent—"I'll be thar."

Loser—"And I'll law you to the supreme court."

Old Gent—"I'll be thar."

Loser—"I'll law you to 'ell!"

Old Gent—"My attorney'll be thar."

CRASHING ARTILLERY FIRE OF THE BRITISH EFFACES GERMAN DEFENSE LINES

British Front in France, July 15. (Via London).—British generals and staff officers are showing elation over the results of the night attack against the German second line, although careful to state that the great task against a powerful foe is only barely started. Soon after daylight the joyful news of the British success slipped into a telephone message over the area occupied by the British army. As a spectacle to an eye witness this action of the second big stage of the battle of the Somme surpassed that of July 1. Taking needed ground for organizing new trenches and throwing out small parties, who dug themselves in, the army has been gradually gaining a position from Oivillers, La Boisselle and Montauban, a distance of four miles, from which to deliver a blow and until many points were within 200 yards of the German second line. Meanwhile, the shells of the British artillery could be seen cutting wire and making thorough preparations of which General Sir Douglas Haig, the British commander, insists there is evidence on every hand. Word Passed Along.—"Tomorrow morning at three," came the laconic word yesterday evening preceded by the usual preliminary bombardment, "only a little better." The ground gained by the British on July 1, and in sub-

GERMANS FORCED BACK: FIGHTING FOR THIRD LINE

BRITISH SAY THEY TOOK 2,000 CAPTIVES IN THE LATEST DRIVE

London, July 15.—The British offensive was resumed today and the war office announced that at one point the Germans were forced back to their third line positions. More than 2,000 prisoners were taken.

(BULLETIN)

Paris, July 15.—A violent artillery duel continues in the Flury sector, the war office announced today. A German attack on a trench northeast of the Avocourt redoubt was repulsed, the official statement asserts and German attempts to undertake attacks in the Apremont Forest were checked by a curtain fire.

Counter Attacks Were a Failure

London, July 15.—Fierce counter attacks made by the Germans in an effort to reconquer some of the ground captured by British in yesterday's drive, were completely crushed by British fire, according to the official statement issued by the war office.

The text follows: "It is not now possible to give further details of the action begun at day break Thursday morning. Having driven the enemy back step by step, to his second system of defense, the period from July 11 to July 12, was mainly spent by our troops in bombarding formidable enemy positions and in making other necessary preparations for a further advance.

"After an intense bombardment the assault was launched at 3.25 a. m. The enemy was driven from his trenches on the whole front of attack and many prisoners fell into our hands.

"Fierce fighting continued all day Thursday and as a result we have steadily increased our gains and now are in possession of the enemy's second position from Bazentin-Le-Petit to Longueval, both villages inclusive, and the whole of the Trones woods. "In the Trones wood we released a party of the royal west Kent who separated from our own troops in the recent fighting and surrounded by Germans, had held out in the northern end of the wood for forty-eight hours.

"Two determined counter-attacks on our positions were completely crushed by our fire. Later in the day, after a fierce counter-attack, the Germans succeeded in recapturing the village of Bazentin-Le-Petit, but were at once driven out again by our fire. The whole village is once more in our hands.

"The positions gained leave the Germans seriously threatened at Fozieres, on the main road from Albert to Bapaume, while possession of the territory around Longueval brings the British advance into line with the French at Hardcourt.

Further heavy British casualty lists issued today give the names of 104 officers killed, 311 wounded and 1,750 men killed and wounded.

The center of interest on the Russian front continues in the Caucasus where the Russians are maintaining their successes against the Turks. Fighting on the Stokhod has relapsed into trench warfare but west of the Stripa, in furious Austrian counter-attacks, the Russians have taken another 3,200 prisoners."

Submarines Supplied By Drifting Depots

New York, July 15.—The Italian steamer Duca Degli Abruzzi which arrived here today left Naples with all lights out and took a zigzag course through the Mediterranean to avoid submarines. On July 3, about five o'clock in the morning the passengers were aroused by firing. They rushed on deck and found the crew were firing from the guns mounted on the stern of the ship at a floating object which later proved to be a huge iron drum. These drums, the officers said, are numerous in the Mediterranean, the Austrians setting them afloat with supplies of oil and gasoline for the purpose of supplying submarines.

Wrong Man Killed

Chicago, July 15.—T. Palmer Miller, member of the class of 1912 of Dartmouth College, was shot and killed early today by James Garrey, a detective sergeant who mistook him for a burglar. Miller was at the home of a friend when a burglar was discovered entering the house. While members of the family and several guests were pursuing the burglar, across the lawn, Sergeant Garrey arrived and fired two shots, one of which struck Miller.

INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE MAY SETTLE DIFFICULTIES BETWEEN MEXICO AND U. S.

Washington, July 15.—Solution of difficulties between the U. S. and Mexico appeared today to trend more and more towards settlement through an international joint commission. Informal conferences between Acting Secretary of State Polk and Elisao Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate, it was indicated, were developing questions for probable submission to such a body.

General Carranza is said to approve the commission plan of settling differences as provided in the treaty of 1848 and state department officials are said to be willing to let negotiations take this course though preferring that adjustment be made through the present conferences. President Wilson, it is understood is not dissatisfied with the direction negotiations are taking.

SANITARY MEASURES TO BE OBSERVED TO PREVENT THE SPREAD OF CHILDREN'S DISEASE

New York, July 15.—Hotel and boarding house keepers all over the state were notified today by local health officers that they would be expected to do their part in preventing the spread of infantile paralysis.

The local health authorities acted under the instructions from Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, state commissioner of health, who was led to send out a new circular of information, owing to the fact that thousands of families have left New York for the rural districts to safeguard the health of their children. Proprietors of hotels and boarding houses will be required to notify health officers of the arrival of any children from infected districts. Those who fail to do so, Dr. Biggs said, will be held personally responsible for any unfavorable developments.

The state health department also urged local health officers to see that glasses, dishes, spoons and other utensils used in eating and drinking in public places are thoroughly scalded, or otherwise disinfected after use. This rule has been enforced already in New York City. The instructions apply particularly to soda fountains. Commissioner Biggs' circular said it is earnestly hoped as little hardship will be inflicted upon the people of the state as is compatible with the health of the people.

Physicians fighting the plague here were encouraged today by cooler weather, also by the fact that there has been a slight decrease in the number of offenders arrested for violations of the sanitary law. The police say janitors and caretakers of apartments are co-operating with them to enforce the law.

PRESS CLAMOR MAY MEAN BREAK BETWEEN ITALY AND GERMANY

Rome, July 15.—A strong demand has arisen in the press and among the public for cancellation of the agreement between Italy and Germany, whereby the rights of citizens of each country within the other's domain were to be respected, violation of the agreement, by Germany being alleged. The situation is such that the relations of Italy and Germany seem to have reached a greater tension than at any time since the war began.

Debate was expected to last several days.

LOSS SHOWN IN OIL PRODUCTION

Lima, July 15.—Crude oil production for the first six months of 1916 in the United States reached a total of 148,000,000 barrels with Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana contributing a total of 12,000,000 barrels of that amount, according to statistics

compiled here. As compared with 1915 this is a loss of 2,500,000 barrels with Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana dropping 250,000 barrels of this total.

During the first half of the year the stocks in the central states were reduced 675,000 barrels and those of Illinois 1,100,000 barrels. At the same time the stocks in Oklahoma and the mid-west fields increased 3,500,000 barrels. Statistics show that the production of the first half year have gone almost directly into consumption. Just at this time the markets are firm with a tendency to decline.

of 1915, Prince Von Buelow, then German ambassador to Italy, concluded an agreement with the Italian government, under which the case of war between Austria and Italy, Germany and Italy pledged themselves to respect the properties and lives of their respective subjects.

This meant for Germany a guarantee of several million dollars' worth of property in Italy held by her subjects and for Italy the safety of 30,000 of her citizens still living in Germany.

Batting averages are queer institutions. Benny Kauff batted .314 in the Fed. circuit last year and Lee Magee hit .330. Kauff is now down around .270 with Magee around .282. Yet the Champs, who batted .360 with the Peds, is up over .300 in the National. And there you are.

M'GRAW ARRESTED

Cincinnati, July 15.—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National League team, was arrested last night on a warrant sworn out by John H. Reed, local fan, charging him with disorderly conduct. McGraw was bound for his appearance in the municipal court and left with his team for St. Louis.

Trouble started after the game when remarks by several spectators were addressed to the New York team while they were in their dressing rooms. McGraw resented the remarks. There were no blows struck, but some ugly language was used, according to the police.

After McGraw's arrest, Arthur Fletcher, shortstop for the New York team, swore to a warrant causing Reed's arrest.

MOVIES ARE BLAMED

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, July 15.—The "movies" are blamed by Dick Kinsey, now scout for the Yankees, for some of the alleged lack of interest in baseball on the part of youths. "Stand on the corner here and give a quarter to the first five you see," he suggested. "You will see that first they drop in at a soda fountain and then they'll be in a 'movie' theatre for the rest of the afternoon."

MATHEWSON TO MANAGE REDS?

Poetry and Pleasure. The poet writes under one restriction only—namely, the necessity of giving immediate pleasure. Nor let this necessity of producing immediate pleasure be considered as a degradation of the poet's art. It is far otherwise. It is an acknowledgment of the beauty of the universe, an acknowledgment of the more sincere because not formal, but indirect. It is a task light and easy to him who looks at the world in the spirit of love. Further, it is a homage paid to the native and naked dignity of men, to the grand elementary principle of pleasure, by which he feels and lives and moves.—William Wordsworth.

DO WE NEED THEM?

(From Huntington Herald-Dispatch)

Although the season is not far advanced, Huntington has already been visited by three amusement enterprises known to fame as the street carnival. The quality of entertainment furnished by these candidates for public favor, has, for the most part, been of questionable merit. There may have been some really good features attached to some of them, but in most cases the attractions have been indifferent and the whole attendant situation demoralizing.

It is true that there are to be found under this head, at rare intervals, shows which possess in parts at least, genuine merit. But such intervals are rare, indeed, and even the best of such organizations carry features which add nothing to the moral status of the community. It is a fact that the status of these attractions has fallen so low that not infrequently they constitute nothing better than a public assignation—a place for ribald revelry and challenge, a spectacle which seems to bring the slums to life and into congregation, and to place a staggering estimate upon the numerical strength of the slum population. The wayward, the unchaperoned, the susceptible of all ages, races and sexes assemble on the carnival grounds and are fed upon all manner of unwholesome association and suggestion.

It is a serious matter whether these shows should not be barred from Huntington altogether. Certain it is that the majority of them have no claim upon the public and are nothing more or less than nuisances which are permitted to prey upon an element of the community population which, if it needs anything in the way of entertainment, needs something much more wholesome than the average carnival offers.

Huntington is not so lean in the amusements provided that we must have every week or two shows of such a character that very few of the respectable element will have anything to do with them and which are in their very nature, capable of appealing only to the unrefined waywardly inclined.

The authorities should, and we believe they will, hereafter, scrutinize very carefully the credentials of the next carnival company that knocks for admittance. And unless the owners can furnish good evidence, that the attractions are cleaner from the standpoint of morals and more worthy from the standpoint of merits, they should be told to pass on.

But it is not so much the demoralizing influence of the average carnival show as pertains to the show itself, as it is that these shows seem to attract the lower elements, and to be the signal for debauchery and gross misconduct, demoralizing in its effect upon the hundreds of girls and boys whom an insufficient system of chaperonage or none at all permits to flock to the carnival grounds that makes them so objectionable.

Do we need the carnival? We do not. We can well afford to try to get through the remainder of the season without another.

WHAT A CAR CAN DO

Out east an automobile of a standard make was given an endurance test that really seems worth while. Its hood was sealed and it was started on a two mile track and then run out in town and the country about. For two full weeks, night and day, it was kept at this without stopping, except for change of driver and renewal of oil and gasoline. At the end of that time it was given an inspection. None of the parts were particularly worn, nor weakened, and from all appearances it could have doubled the distance it traveled in the two weeks, over four thousand miles, without serious wear or injury.

That's fine, very fine. The wonder is why somebody doesn't make more than one car like that.

Strange how some people escape one misfortune only to fall into another. The man who was just acquitted of attempt to blow up the Welland canal is to be known as Madam Gadske's husband. And a name like that at that.

A newspaper man, who a thousand times has mocked a woman for getting off a street car backwards, tried it himself the other day. No damage was done the paving, but, oh, my, his head, even to this date.

From 'way down in Arkansas comes the Little Rock Gazette offering this thought for the day—it is remarkable how few men who follow guitar playing for a living, get rich.

Our reading of the daily news convinces us that the deadly dressing is actively engaged in doing business at the old stand. It could soon be bankrupt of toll however, if people would only heed the injunction: "Stop, Read, Listen."

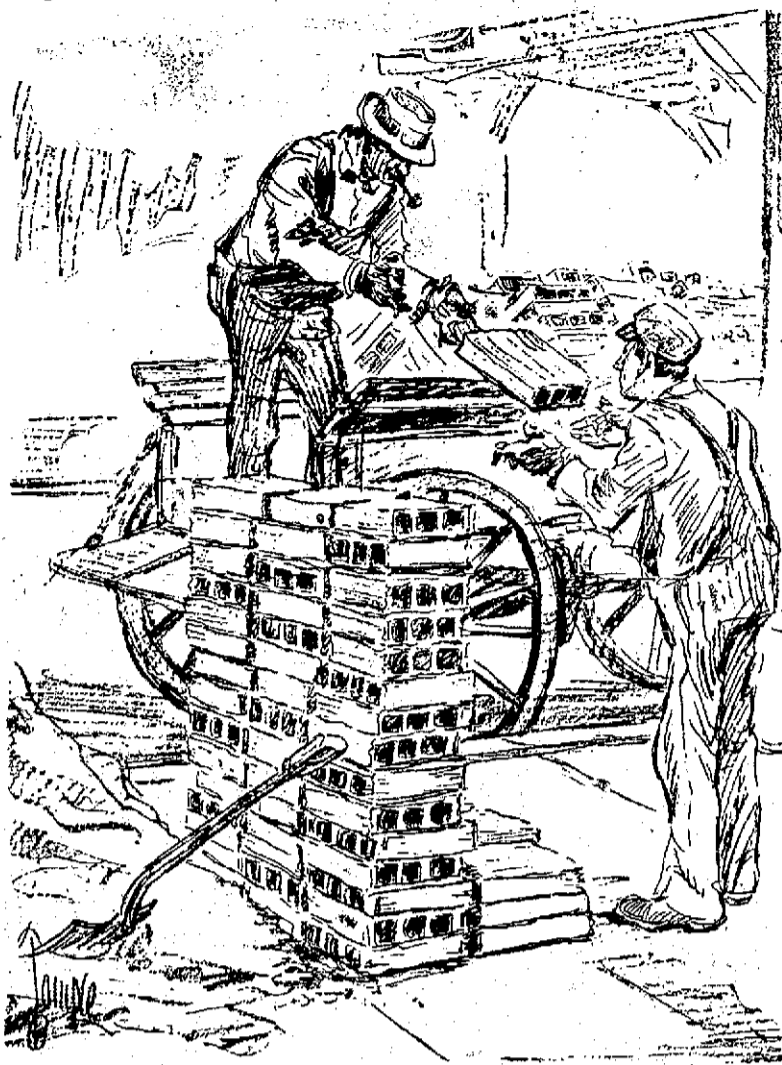

To the befogged vision of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, Uncle Sam must have been suffering from "low visibility" when he recognized Carranza as a de facto.

Anent the report that the Mexicans are preparing to shell General Pershing's motor truck trail, the Louisville-Journal exclaims: "They have shed our blood. Now, if they spill our gasoline, nothing shall hold us back!"

As the Chicago Post sizes it up our boys down on the border have nothing to fear, except pulque, mescal, prickly pears and Mexicans, just about the order named, we opine.

There may be nothing in a name, but all the same Mrs. Joy, of Springfield, Mass., has twenty-six nephews fighting in Europe, like Irishmen will fight, and not a single one of them has, so far, received so much as a scratch.

A GOOD WORD FOR HER

A writer, who is familiar with all the great ones that cluster about Wall Street, says that Flatty Green, the richest woman in the world, at her death, was not mean, but gentle and kindly; she was not parsimonious, but frugal and thrifty. She heaped up by interest and wide investment a fortune of about six millions, left her by her husband, little better than fifty years ago, until its present dimensions may be as great as two hundred millions, yet she oppressed no one, neither did she so manipulate the stock and money markets so as to bring loss and ruin to others and vast gains to herself, a thing the vast cash at her command would have enabled her easily to do. All her operations were legitimate and her financial transactions were ever straight and honorable. Altogether here is a rare enconium and it shows how ill and wrongly the world judges those upon whom fortune showers its abundance.

A colored trooper complain that after making him prisoner at the Carrizal affair, Mexicans robbed him of $400 in cash. The bones must have been rolling his way strong the night before.

What's the matter? There seems to be no more Colonel timber in the country. Only the Doughty One himself has offered to organize a regiment.

We'll have to give the weather clerk credit for trying, even if he does make a poor stagger in trying to convert a shower into a rain.

By-the-way, we will have to hand the bouquet to the present crop of governors. Notwithstanding this Mexican flurry and the torrid weather they have so far "Kept their shirts on" most decently.

Over at Springfield there is a street car motorman recently come into a one-eighteenth share of an estate of not less than half a million dollars, who keeps steadily on his job, saying there will be time enough to consider change of plans when his ship actually comes in. Wise guy, he appreciates the truth of the maxim, that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush and he isn't going to let go of a safe thing until he sees what's left when the lawyers get through with the estate.

The Star, of Portsmouth, Virginia, came near, perpetrating a record, the other day, when it emitted a sentence of 234 words with no heavier break than a dash or a comma. It certainly established a record when it made that sentence all there was of one editorial. And what do you think that sentence was about? Simply, that if the Star had devoted itself to carping and fault-finding over the course and actions of the president the administration would not, in human nature, be inclined to look with favor upon the proposed extensions of the Portsmouth naval yards.

DOILIES

Whoever would think about doilies except women? This is not an accusation, nor is it our desire to bawl anybody out about doilies. As for doilies, we are absolutely unbiased about 'em—up to this point. We may get indulged before we have come far, but up to this time we are cool. However, doilies are pretty feminine—we must say that. Will there still be doilies when suffrage becomes universal? Somehow it is hard to think of suffrage and doilies in the same breath. Will suffrage destroy the doily? Every home that is a home has either a tiny doily here and there, doilies under the molasses pitcher, doilies under the tea water, doilies, doilies everywhere, and a lot of doilies absolutely unjustified from any practical standpoint. In fact, it is these latter doilies that we love best of all. The more useless a doily, the more we love it.

Ladies and gentlemen, here is the whole point to any real objection that anybody may have to suffrage. We don't want it to destroy the doily instinct in women. Doilies and lingerie—what is life without THEM? What would home be if it were a place of four cement walls, a cook-stove and a khaki tablecloth! No, let us preserve the doily, and other feminine foibles.

Somewhere in the audience says that doilies have been out of style ten years. Well, maybe they have. We haven't noticed.

Billy Finds The Strawberry Patch

"I DON'T EXACTLY know what the matter with me to-day," said Billy to his mother, "but I don't feel made straight for the neighbor's garden for worms."

How Mrs. Billy did laugh! "Just as though that was to be wondered at," cried she, "as soon as she could speak. 'If you had seen yourself go after those great, big worms you dug out of the neighbor's garden yesterday, you wouldn't have thought you could eat a worm for a week. Indeed you wouldn't have, Billy! For my part, I'm only too thankful you are not sick!'"

"The very idea," said Billy tartly, "for above all things he hated to be laughed at. 'You and Mrs. Chippy will never get through talking about the way I stood on my head. I guess you would have done exactly the same thing if you had been there. I know Mrs. Chippy would have, too, if she liked worms as well as I do—I mean as well as I usually do,' added Billy as he remembered his grievance."

"I'll tell you what you might do, Billy," said Mrs. Billy, thoughtfully, "for she always liked to help Billy out if she could. 'You might try over to the next block. I think there must be something good in that third garden.'"

"So?" asked Billy, and he perked up his tail and looked interested.

"Because I've noticed that all morning birds have been going over there and I'm sure they wouldn't unless there was a good reason."

"Then why didn't you go yourself?" asked Billy suspiciously.

"Because I had all I could eat right here at home. This is a very good garden here, Billy, and you know it. And anyway, I'm not as brave about investigating as you are."

That settled it. Billy would not have stayed away from that garden if she had told him a hundred reasons, happy and true.

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY

O-O-MEINTYRE

New York, July 15—There seems to be no limit to what the New York hotels are doing in the way of trying to outdo each other. One hotel starts with a this room and in a few weeks a rival has a this room, and so it goes. Of course the ultimate consumer pays the freight in the end.

The other night a little party of four, which included the writer, sat down in Armancville at the Knickerbocker. It is a beautiful gray room—but it wasn't worth $4 just for the privilege of sitting in the chair, but that was what it cost—$1 each for the conveyer, they call it, and whatever is ordered is extra.

During the past week the Vanderbilt has opened what they call the "Far East Gardens," which is sumptuously done. Bamboo and damask are the minor decorations. Same, or rather many Chinese and Japanese prints and paintings by the genius Schleich also add to the general scheme.

The roof of the Majestic, done over like an ocean liner, is another step that required certain daring. The whole cafe and dancing floor are out in the open air and when it rains the roof is closed. The management gambled on the weather—if it proves to be a rainy season they will lose a fortune, but if it is fair weather—it will be something else again.

His Excellency of the Brilliance attended the opening of the Ritz Roof the other night. He was offered a souvenir by a Mexican waiter. "I'll take it if you'll wear this," and he dug a tiny American flag from his pockets. The waiter wore the flag. His Excellency is Diamond Jim Brady.

The vanguard of happy partiers can be seen at the railroad stations for the open season for "My Wife's Gone to the Country," has started. All the larger roads have installed tear mops for the tired business man's crocodile work and the general stores of rural centres have installed the great mass of "Wish

You Were Here" postals for the sunstroke season.

At the wilder locations in and about New York the head waiters will begin to look for the sheepish tribe with the champagne colored socks and the shifty eyes and the rail systems entering to the nearby commuters will start the special Sunday troop trains with dog kennel, raffle, raffle, raffle and canary bird cage snuffle embroidery.

The shirt makers are working overtime on the big stripe goods which denote that a husband has been left to his own devices and is afraid of no man, woman or child at present in the city. One of the most certain symptoms of an emancipated party is the manner in which he goes wild up around his neck with cravats, shirt and waist trimmings.

Tired wives with a glimmer of doubt in their wet eyes can be seen tickling father for the last banknote on his person and fond husbands can be seen starting for home with a seriousness that is simply screamingly amusing.

Wex Jones, the humorist, has suggested that this was the bill of fare at that Hughes-Roosevelt dinner at the Astor the other evening:

Clams a la Supreme Court Justice
Progressives in the soup
Man-Eating Fish
Whiskered Bird, Stuffed with nuts Hunch of Bull Moose.

Joy Mitt a la Oyster Bay.
Fairbanks cocktails.
Teaspoonful of Brandy.
River of Doubt Water.

Women are going in for the hazardous game of pole. Up at Stampsford the other afternoon a group of players defeated a team of men. They rode their ponies well and showed superiority over the men in every department.

A Word of Praise

How much a little word of praise will keep a fellow going! How much a little compliment will keep the sunlight flowing! A word of cheer will do it, too. So fellow-men and woman, Let's try today along the way To be a little human!

How much a comforting remark will do to keep one steady! How sweet the heart responds with song and always up and ready. A word of praise, a word of cheer, They have a mighty power To lift the spirit out of gloom The same as any flower!

"Never noticed what, dear?"

"The boss is out," said the office boy. He's gone to a directors' meeting."

An old gentleman, now deceased, never seemed to be satisfied unless he had several cases pending in court. He left surviving him a son who seems to have followed in his footsteps and has continued to keep up his father's record of proceedings in court.

This story is told of the father: The old gent had just won a case in the justice court, when the loser, in a very combative frame of mind, exclaimed: "I'll law you to the circuit court!"

Old Gent—"I'll be there."

Losar—"I'll law you to 'ell!"

Old Gent—"My attorney'll be there."

Scioto Claims Another Victim, Boy Drowns Near Clifford

Miles Welton, Aged 13, Attempts To Wade Stream; Searchers Look For Body, Third Drowning In Week

Within less than a week the Scioto and Ohio rivers have reaped a total of three lives, three youths being the victims. Playing in the treacherous water of the Scioto and being unable to swim, cost the life of Miles Welton, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Welton, of Clifford, above Lucasville, Friday afternoon about four o'clock.

The first victim of the season was John Humphrey, aged 11, who met death in the Ohio river last Saturday evening.

The second victim was John E. Moore, 12, who drowned in the Scioto Tuesday during the noon hour.

The bodies of the first two victims were recovered but up to ten o'clock Saturday the body of young Welton had not been brought to the surface. Welton is the oldest of the three to drown this season.

Welton, Hobart and Louis, McCallister, sons of Frank McCallister, of Clifford, spent the most of Friday afternoon at the river. They had been in wading and playing around in a boat belonging to Joe Moore, pumper at the N. & W. water tank. Louis McCallister, who is 18, remained in the boat and was cleaning the mud out of it when the fatal accident occurred. Hobart McCallister, who is only ten, was in the water with young Welton. The two had crossed the stream in the boat and spent some time playing in the sand on the bar. The scene of drowning was the A. F. Millar bar, about a half mile above the N. & W. water tank at Clifford.

Tiring of playing on the bar, the boys started back to the other side of the river. They waded for some distance on the bar and must

HORSE RACING REVIVED IN CHICAGO TO INITIATE CLASS

Chicago, July 15.—Horse racing was revived in Chicago today after an intermission of twelve years.

At Hawthorne track a ten days' meeting was opened, the feature event today being the derby worth $10,000.

The last race meeting held here was in 1904, when Highball won the American derby at Washington Park.

According to officials of the Illinois jockey club, under whose management the meeting is held, the advance sale shows that a big crowd will be at the course when the first race is called this afternoon.

ROYAL FOREST BURNING

Paris, July 15.—The fire which destroyed the summer residence of King Constantine of Greece situated at Tatoi on the outskirts of Athens, is still raging in the forest in which the royal chateau stood. A Hava despatch from Athens says it is feared the flames will reach the city.

Among those who lost their lives in the fire were Colonel De La Porta of the engineers, M. Chrysospathis, the head of the Royal secret service and twenty soldiers. Fifty soldiers were injured in rescue work.

WILL BE CHAIRMAN

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 15.—John W. Davis, of Clarkburg, W. Va., solicitor general of the U. S., has agreed to act as temporary chairman of the Democratic State convention here on August 2, according to an announcement made by the state committee yesterday.

OBITUARY

William Leeds Police Sergeant John C. Leeds received word of the death of his brother, William Leeds, aged 43 years, which occurred at the home of their mother, Mrs. Sarah Leeds, in Williamsburg, O., Friday night, at 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. Leeds until stricken with cancer, was located in Pittsburgh, Penn., where he was employed as a mail wagon driver. He had been at Williamsburg since February. His wife, Mrs. Emma Leeds, faithfully nursed him there, while their two children, Clarence, aged 13 years, and Irene, aged 15, have been temporarily staying at Sergeant Leeds' home in this city. Sergeant and Mrs. Leeds and their nephew and niece left for Williamsburg early Saturday morning to attend the funeral.

Injury

Young Widow Takes Poison; Life Saved By Physicians

While whispered about the neighborhood that interference with her love affair with a mere youth prompted the rash act, members of the family themselves say it was her own ungovernable temper that led Mrs. Luthy Pyles, aged 20 years, a widow of No. 620 Tenth street, to make an attempt to end her life late Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Pyles drained a bottle containing a solution of chloroform and alcohol, swallowing from two to three ounces of the mixture. It was at first feared she had taken carbolic acid. A hurry call was sent in to police headquarters for City Physician W. D. Schafer but someone an instant later succeeded in locating Dr. James W. Fitch who, by his prompt use of a stomach pump soon had the young woman out of danger.

Mrs. Pyles and her little nephew, Louis Hagerman, a ten-year-old son of Mrs. Louis Hagerman, had engaged in a "friendly battle" by throwing water at each other. It finally became so intense that the former's sister, Miss Nellie Levenier, ordered her to "cut it out."

Thoroughly enraged Mrs. Pyles rushed into the house, through the kitchen into the sitting room and seizing the bottle containing the poisonous mixture from a mantle-piece placed it to her lips before the others could interfere. She immediately repaired to a bedroom and according to reports repeatedly called for Walter Lauter saying she wanted to see him before she passed away.

When a Times man reached the scene Lauter was standing at the alley gate of the lot wildly shouting to the excited women not to talk to the reporter.

Dr. Fitch said the young woman had swallowed a sufficient quantity of the solution to kill her but that he had succeeded in emptying her stomach in time to save her life.

Mrs. Pyles is a daughter of Paul Levenier, a mill hand at the H. Leet Lumber Co.'s plant. Her husband, Philip Pyles, from whom she had separated, died four years ago. She has one child, Philip Louis Pyles, aged three years. She helps support herself and child by doing housework about town.

MAY LENGTHEN Burial Expenses Of Child Borne By Burchett, Denies He's Father

Washington, July 15.—Senate Democrats will caucus tonight to decide whether the legislative program drawn up recently shall be extended at the cost of lengthening the present session of congress beyond Sept. 1. Many Democrats are insistent that special measures be added to the program, but leaders realize that this would mean the session would last into fall.

Democrats and Republicans are still apart on what measures are to be disposed of.

Although still contending that he was not the father of the child, Frank Burchett, an apprentice at the Reliable Engine Company's plant, Friday evening accepted the advice of Probate Judge T. C. Beatty and agreed to pay all of the expenses for burying the dead body of the two-month-old baby daughter of his 17-year-old wife, Mrs. Madge Ryland-Burchett, with whom he has not lived a day since their marriage, six or seven months ago.

The child had died Thursday morning of summer complaint, and the corpse lay neglected at the home of the young mother's father, A. J. Ryland, a city employee, of No. 1317 Union street, until the middle of Friday afternoon, city and county officials being unable to agree as to who should assume the responsibility.

Director E. K. S. Clinkenbeard, of the public safety department, expected the county authorities to provide burial for the dead child, but it was not until after he had satisfied himself that under the law he could act, did Supt. William Weidner, of the county infirmary, direct County Undertaker John Dier

Deputy Sheriff Rome Arthur returned late Friday night from Lancaster, where he took Cecil Lewis, a local youth, to the reformatory to start on an indeterminate term on a charge of petty thievery.

Deputy Sheriff Rome Arthur Saturday was still angry about the escape of Harvey Wingo, another young man whom he had in custody. In discussing the incident Saturday, he said that the passenger train had reached Dorney, the coaling station near Circleville. "I couldn't get a seat either in front or behind the boys and was compelled to sit opposite them. They had the window open just about eight inches and I did not allow them to get it higher, for I feared that they would try to jump through."

"Well a freight train pulled up and left about the time we arrived there, and before I knew it, Wingo shot out through the window and made his escape through the fields. I could not leave Lewis, for he would escape while I was looking for Wingo, so I went to Circleville and notified Sheriff Sheets. He went to the coaling station and scoured the fields, but did not find him."

When seen Saturday, Judge Thomas C. Beatty stated that he understood that the Wingo boy had made his way back to his home in South Portsmouth.

Awning Blaze At Chabot Grocery

Fire of unknown origin destroyed part of the awning at the Alva Chabot grocery, Third and Waller streets, Friday evening. The alarm was turned in at 9:29, two boxes being pulled but only one, a box 62, registered the alarm. Henderson Hutchison, who lives near the store, discovered the fire and telephoned in an alarm.

The awning was up against the building when the fire started. A cigar stub was thrown into the awning or it was touched with a match is the opinion of Mr. Chabot. The east plate glass window was cracked by the heat of the fire. Part of the frame work at the top of the window was also burned. The Seventh street and East End companies answered the alarm and extinguished the fire with chemicals.

WOMAN TIRED OF ABUSE SHOOT'S HUSBAND

New York—"I've done it now. It is the last time he will annoy me. One had man is dead and now my children can grow up self-respecting. For their sake I am ready to face all that the next few months will bring me."

This is the statement of Mrs. Beutinger in defense of killing her husband a wealthy coal dealer of New York, and father of her five children.

The murder was committed at their home in Caldwell, N. J., on the evening of July 11.

CRASHING ARTILLERY

sequent operations gave the Associated Press observer a view point from which the whole line of attack could be seen. The faint moonlight enabled the gunners dimly to see their work, the infantry and the contour of the ground. "This is a real daylight show," said one of the gunners.

Seemingly, as the observer pushed audaciously close to the German lines, there was the greatest concentration of guns of all calibres probably ever made in a given area. From behind the German trenches gained on July 1, darted the dagger flashes through a blanket of night. One, two, three, four, battery after battery was shooting at high speed, from the bottom of the hillside to the top. The scene of artillery power was no less indescribable than the thrilling suggestion of the waiting infantry battalion lines which were seen going into position before the battle.

Infantry Springs Forward.

At the moment the assault started it seemed there was no interval in the thunders as the guns moved forward their curtain of shell bursts in front of the first wave of infantry advancing across the zone between their trenches and the German lines.

In the direction of Tongueval a big fire was seen. It was the village or a storehouse burning, as the bright spot was growing to a steady point in the field of gunflashes. Then, soaring heavenward went a rocket signal light which gave the position gained in the attack. Commanders in the rear answer with other signals, while what had been the German strongholds half an hour or an hour before were burning red patches, spread with the sparks of roman candles. This method of communication is a difficult part of the business of directing an army under cover of darkness.

At the first flush of dawn the first British aeroplane came humming from its aerodrome toward the German lines, and the sausage-shaped observation balloons arose together into the air into a vague scene of the oblong and grotesque monitors. Out of the blanket of which the guns were flashing arose the white flashes of the mace of old German trenches, the ribbons were rods, and finally, the dark masses became Mameluz and other now famous woods, and the gaunt finger points the trunks of trees which had shaded the highways, but now were denuded of limbs by the shell fire.

While the smoke clouds from the British lines were carried by favorable winds and the shells made other points of the line indistinct, the ridge of Tongueval, where the British burrowed forward against commanding positions and a stubborn, cunning and brave foe, was seen distinctly to be in their possession. More lines of troops were moving through the German curtains of shell fire to the support of those who had gained the hotly desired summit and now were looking down-hill where the German guns are hidden and with the Bapaume ridge in the distance. Behind them all was the organization which had plotted the action of the army, and back of those were battalions awaiting orders.

A sergeant of artillery, of the typical ruddy-faced "John Bull" type, setting stiff on his horse after a sleepless night, directing the columns of Cannons, hurrying up ammunition on to the greedy guns, called out: "Mind your wheel horse. Now, all together like I taught you to do."

The wheels with their padded and noiseless axles went up the embankment with every rider urging his straining mount.
